State OKs Relocation For Kingston Hospital

By Matt Spriong

KINGSTON Kingston Hospital has received preliminary State Health Department approval to relocate its facilities on a 20-acre site off Col. Chandler Drive and Sawkill Road in the Town of Ulster, according to Anthony R. Triulzi, hospital administrator.

While further state approval will be needed for architectural drawings and plans for the new 213-bed hospital, construction could start in 18 months, Triulzi said.

The cost of the new facility is estimated at $23 million, to be funded through loans from financial institutions guaranteed by the federal government and possible federal interest subsidies and grants.

The hospital has also received final approval from the state for the construction and installation of a four-unit chronic hemodialysis center for the treatment of chronically ill kidney patients. Construction of the center, which will consist of renovations at the current hospital site on Broadway, is expected to start "virtually immediately," Triulzi said. The cost of the project will be $100,000 to $150,000, according to the hospital administrator.

The new hospital in the Town of Ulster will be designed with its own hemodialysis center.

The site chosen for the new hospital is at the former Arnold Palmer Driving Range, Triulzi said, explaining that the site is privately owned and that the hospital has an option to purchase the 20 acres of land.

He refused to divulge the purchase price of the property.

According to Triulzi, the idea of the City of Kingston annexing property in the Town of Ulster on which to build the new hospital is not being pursued.

One of the major reasons for the possible annexation was to allow the city to provide water and sewerage services for the hospital without violating its policy of not providing such services outside the city.

Explaining that negotiations for water and sewerage are underway, Triulzi said, "I can't reveal how we will (plan to) get water and sewerage." He did say, however, that at present the hospital has no commitment from the city to provide such services.

What of the current facility which has been the site of Kingston Hospital for the past 50 years?

"We're in a quandary at this point," Triulzi said. The hospital in making its proposal to build the new facility in the Town of Ulster also proposed to turn its present facility into a 150-bed "long term care facility" with a capacity of 100 nursing home beds and 50 health-related beds. That proposal was turned down by the Northern Metropolitan Health Planning Council on the basis of need. However, according to Triulzi, the hospital is still pursuing such an idea with the state, which "is looking at it very keenly."

The decision to relocate the hospital was made last December by the board of trustees, which concluded that any continued financial investment at the current facility would be "imprudent."

County Jobless Rate Lowest in Four Months

KINGSTON Unemployment in Ulster County dipped to its lowest level in almost four months—and the third lowest mark of the year—during the week that ended Sept. 12, according to figures released by the New York State Department of Labor.

According to statistics, 5,079 persons filed for unemployment benefits at the Kingston office during that week, a drop of 189 from the previous week. It represented the lowest number of claims filed at the Kingston office since the week of May 30, when 4,997 unemployed workers filed for benefits.

Since local unemployment reached its highest point during the week that ended July 11, the employment picture has shown gradual—although, at times, erratic—improvement. In the past two months, the number of persons who have filed for unemployment benefits has declined by a little more than 1,000.

The statistics provided by the state labor department include claims filed under regular, extended, emergency and special unemployment assistance programs, but they do not include those jobless persons who are not eligible, or do not file, for unemployment benefits.

In addition, the statistics from the Kingston office do not include unemployed persons who reside in some southern Ulster County towns which fall under the jurisdiction of labor department offices in Poughkeepsie or Newburgh. Those figures are not available on a town-by-town basis.

But the overall employment picture in this area, according to experts, appears to be showing some improvement. Traditionally, employment suffers setbacks in this area after Labor Day because of the job market's dependence on the tourist industry and construction trades.

The picture statewide, however, is not as encouraging. During the week that ended Sept. 12, 367,210 persons filed for unemployment benefits, and increase of about 5,000 over the previous week. A year ago, the unemployment figure stood at just 255,068.

Most of the major district offices throughout the state experienced declines in unemployment benefit applications during the week, but especially heavy increases in the Rochester, New York City and Long Island areas accounted for the increased totals for all of New York State.

In the Mid-Hudson and Catskill region, Hudson, Middletown, Newburgh and Oneonta all registered declines during the week of Sept. 12. The Poughkeepsie district office, which traditionally has the lowest unemployment rate in the state, experienced a sharp increase between Sept. 5 (4,730) and Sept. 12 (6,237).

'Forgotten' Prisoner Freed After 44 Years

STORMVILLE, N.Y. (UPI) — With his soft and gentle face, and blue eyes sparkling through thick glasses, the 71-year-old man walked away from the 30-foot-high gray walls of the Green Haven Correctional Facility.

After 44 years in prison, most of them in an institution reserved for the criminally insane, Roy Schuster was getting out.

"Life will be a whole new adventure," he said Thursday.

"I don't anticipate any real trouble in adapting to the outside, though things are going to be strange and I'm going to feel strange."

In 1931, Schuster, then a successful 26-year-old dancer, was sentenced to 25 years to life imprisonment for murdering his wife during an argument over alimony.

Ten years later, after formally complaining about alleged corruption at the Clinton State Prison, Schuster was remanded without the standard competency hearing to the Dannemora Prison for the Criminally Insane. He was held there for 31 years.

"I've seen a good many things that are horrible beyond conception," Schuster said. "I'll tell you things you wouldn't believe ... They are madmen up there, and they're supposed to cure people."

Schuster, relaxed and smiling, said he held no grudge over his prolonged incarceration. "I've learned feeling bitter or anything of that nature is foolish," he said.

In ordering Schuster's release Tuesday, Chief Judge Irving R. Kaufman of the Second Circuit U.S. Court of Appeals said his imprisonment was marked "by a total callousness to ordinary decency due every human."

"Although we are reasonably certain that the shocking story revealed in the Gulag Archipelago could not take place in this country," Kaufman said, "the facts of Roy Schuster's case are reminiscent of (Alexander) Solzhenitsyn's treatise."

Solzhenitsyn, the Nobel prize winning author, wrote of his cruel experiences in the Soviet prison camp system he called the Gulag Archipelago.

On April 24, 1969, the U.S. Court of Appeals ruled New York State's failure to give Schuster a sanity hearing before committing him to Dannemora violated his civil rights.

Despite the court's order that a hearing take place within 60 days, the state delayed the hearing for three years while it contested Schuster's choice of venue. The hearing was never held and Schuster was transferred to Green Haven Prison on March 29, 1972.

Before he walked away from the prison, Schuster was asked if he thought the court's decision came too late to do him any good.

"Too late for me?" Schuster said smiling broadly. "It's never too late for anybody who wants to do something."

Eloise Spews Her Wrath on the Northeast

By UPI Downpours that forced the evacuation of some 5,000 residents in Pennsylvania and left awash or closed most major roads today in the Washington, D.C. metropolitan area.

A total of 13½ inches of rain fell in the last few days in the Patuxent river basin and a 3½ inch deluge in a seven-hour period ending at 6 a.m. forced evacuation of downtown Laurel and Detour, Md., and along a four-mile run of the Patuxent River.

Stalled cars on flooded roads hampered traffic moving into the nation's capital. Metropolitan area officials called the traffic snarl the worst since the blizzard of 1966 and the heaviest rains since Hurricane Agnes in 1972.

In Pennsylvania, 2,000 persons left their homes Thursday and another 3,000 were evacuated today.

Pennsylvania Gov. Milton J. Shapp declared a state of extreme emergency in the flood-stricken south central areas of the state.

Some 1,200 persons were evacuated from trailer homes in Franklin County along the Conococheague River, and overflows of the Yellow Breeches and Conowago creeks in Cumberland and Adams counties forced evacuation of about 540 persons. Other evacuations were reported in Montour and York counties.

The National Weather Service warned the "flood potential is very high and the crests will be determined by additional rain" in the worst-hit areas. Continued heavy rains, a NWS spokesman arned, could flood major streams, including the Juniata and some branches of the Big Susquehanna River.

Rivers and creeks, glutted by four days of heavy rains, bulged over their banks in more than a dozen communities in New York's southern tier, flooding basements, blocking some roads and washing out some smaller bridges. There were no injuries.

Chilly, wind-whipped rains soaked New York City, touching off flooding that created traffic jams and slowed subway trains. The city had been drenched by four inches of rain by Thursday night and the downpours continued early today. More than 7,500 calls for aid were received from waterlogged motorists by the auto club of New York.

FBI Admits 238 Burglaries on 'Radicals'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The FBI committed 238 burglaries against suspected subversive groups between 1942 and 1968 and got Internal Revenue Service cooperation in its surveillance, according to evidence and testimony given the Senate Intelligence Committee.

Reading from declassified FBI documents Thursday, Chairman Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, said FBI agents had made 238 illegal entries into premises of 14 unidentified domestic organizations between 1942 and 1968, when then FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover ordered the so-called "black bag jobs" halted.

Church said the FBI also made "numerous entries" into premises of at least three of those organizations during 1952-66. He said evidence indicated the FBI burglaries ended in 1968, "with one possible exception." He would not elaborate.

Church later told reporters the FBI surveillance included Students for a Democratic Society and black militant groups which he said he could not identify now. He said the SDS watch resulted in the FBI opening 6,500 cases and that the surveillance of black groups opened 4,000 cases.

Charles Brennan, former assistant director of the FBI Domestic Intelligence Division, said the break-ins were "directed at domestic subversive groups and ... extremist organizations."

Brennan said it was FBI policy to use the IRS in its surveillance to learn the source and extent of income of the groups. Church said IRS officials would be queried next week about this.

Brennan said the FBI was ordered by the Nixon White House to seek evidence Communist powers were financing anti-Vietnam war movements. He said no evidence of Communist financing was found, but leaders of some militant groups did attend foreign Communist-sponsored meetings, notably in Cuba, during which the role of the antiwar movement in the United States was discussed.

Roundup in Dallas

This wasn't just one of your run-of-the-mill roundups. Dallas police got to put their guns away and get out their lassos early Thursday when a cattle truck flipped over near downtown Dallas and more than 100 head of cattle roamed the area until police finished the roundup. Rush-hour traffic was diverted to other expressways. (UPI)

City GOP Candidate Would Change Routine

KINGSTON
Emily Johnson, Republican candidate for alderman-at-large, says that the Common Council should meet in regular session twice a month and that committee reports should be available to the public at least five days prior to regular meetings.

"It's way past the time when the deliberations of the Council should reflect an openness in the city's legislative business and encourage public responsiveness," said Mrs. Johnson. "The Common Council proceedings should be brought out of the Dark Ages and into the last quarter of the 20th century."

"The present system has remained basically intact since the Civil War," she went on. "Often there are long recesses for committee meetings and political party caucuses."

"While these are going on, the public is left waiting and becomes discouraged," the candidate asserted. "A case in point would be a recent meeting when the Common Council considered the Chapel Street landfill site."

"I and several hundred other residents of the City were left waiting for an hour and a half while secret meetings went on," said Mrs. Johnson. "Such a wait is not only discourteous to the public but it cast the aldermen in a most unfavorable light."

"When elected I will push for two regular meetings a month of the Common Council," said the first woman candidate for city-wide executive office. "This would allow for the orderly discussion of city legislation while at the same time affording students and our senior citizens a reasonable hour of adjournment."

"With two meetings per month there is no reason why the aldermen's committees could not conclude their business in sufficient time to file a report with the city clerk five days before the Council next meets," claimed Mrs. Johnson. "This would give interested groups and individuals advanced notice of the report and allow the marshalling of public opinion."

"Should a true emergency arise rather than those now frequently caused by missed deadlines, a special message of necessity from the mayor could cause a waiver of the rule as, of course, could a unanimous vote of the Council," the candidate explained. "More frequent meetings should result in prompt action on matters vital to the City."

"As a mother of school-aged children, I'm naturally disappointed that social studies classes seldom attend Council meetings," Mrs. Johnson said. "Undoubtedly it is the present very poor image the aldermen present with their long recesses and late sessions that discourages teachers from attending with students."

"A revision of the format of the Council agenda with the routine matters left to the end would also increase public participation at City Hall," the candidate asserted. "The present public image of the the Common Council is one of almost complete contempt and scorn."

"I will endeavor as the Council's presiding officer to make it one that is responsive to the needs of our residents and one which they will take pride in," concluded Mrs. Johnson.

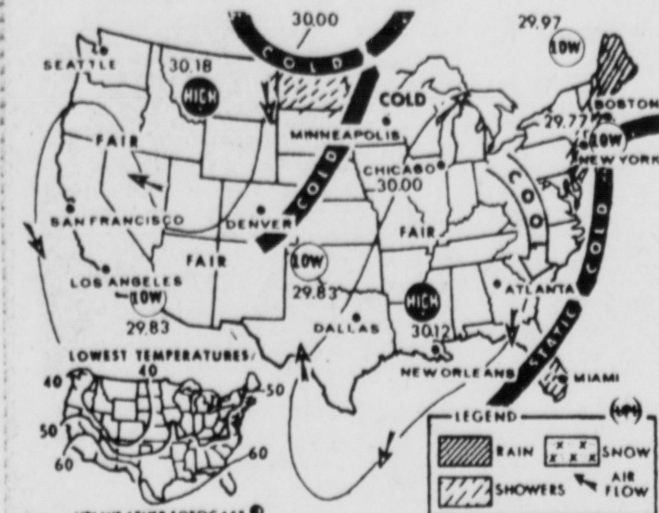

Water Resource Speakers

Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey (D-101st Dist.) will be the guest speaker at the next meeting of Catskill Waters, to be held Tuesday, Sept. 30 at 7 p.m. at the Antrim Lodge, Roscoe.

Hinchey's talk will deal with water resource issues in the Catskill region.

Also on the agenda for Tuesday's meeting are reports by Peter Skinner of the New York State Attorney General's Office and Alfred Hulstrunk of the Department of Environmental Conservation concerning the status of negotiations with New York City regarding operation of upstate reservoirs.

Catskill Waters is a coalition of groups and individuals concerned with water resource problems of the Catskill region. Its meetings are open to the public.

Patty Doesn't Want to Be a 'Prisoner' in Home

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Patricia Hearst, in conversations with a friend from her jail cell, said she doesn't want a bail arrangement in which she would be a "prisoner in my parent's home." She also indicated her politics had changed radically and could affect her legal defense.

In an affidavit three days ago her father, Randolph Hearst, said Miss Hearst had expressed "an enthusiastic wish to return to living with her parents."

In the taped conversation, she indicated she had embraced a "revolutionary feminist" outlook since her abduction by the Symbionese Liberation Army 19 months ago and was infuriated when she was captured two weeks ago.

The conversations were disclosed Thursday in a partial transcript of a tape-recording of a visit between Miss Hearst and Patricia Tobin Saturday in the San Mateo County Jail in Redwood City.

Federal officials and San Mateo County Sheriff John McDonald said defense lawyers knew visits to Miss Hearst would be tape recorded.

U.S. Attorney James Browning Jr. gave the transcript to Judge Oliver Carter so he could make it available to the three psychiatrists appointed to examine the 21-year-old newspaper heiress. Carter said he wanted the evaluation prior to considering a bail reduction request by her lawyers.

Browning also introduced a resume of some of the government's evidence against Miss Hearst for an April, 1974, bank robbery conducted by several SLA members in San Francisco. The material included pictures taken by a bank camera during the hold-up, he said.

Miss Tobin, in the conversation, asked Miss Hearst whether she was speaking candidly with her parents during their visits.

Miss Hearst: "Well, I mean, like, the only thing I (deleted) I'm not talking to anybody real openly because it's too weird and besides like they listen in on everything and photograph, but, ah, I mean, I told 'em that my politics were different."

Miss Hearst also gave this answer to a question that was deleted: "Yea, I mean, all of us do have it really together. I really feel good, like, now."

This followed:

Miss Tobin: "Do you?"

Miss Hearst: "Ahum."

Miss Tobin: "Do you want to come home? What do you want to do?"

Miss Hearst: "Well, what I want to do is (deleted) I don't want to have the bail thing where I'm a prisoner in my parents' home which is possible, but (deleted)."

Deletions in the transcript were made by Browning.

Miss Hearst's affidavit, filed earlier this week as part of a bail hearing, said she was "completely convinced of the love and affection of her family and that she will find safety and comfort in its midst."

Her father's affidavit, filed at the same time, said Patricia "is not only welcome but she regards our home as her home and has expressed, over the past three days, an enthusiastic wish to return to living with her parents."

Miss Hearst, granddaughter of newspaper magnate William Randolph Hearst and daughter of San Francisco Examiner President Randolph A. Hearst, was kidnapped by three SLA members from her Berkeley, Calif., apartment on Feb. 4, 1974. She later said in tape-recorded communications that she had renounced her past life to join the small terrorist group.

Miss Hearst and three SLA members were captured here last week.

Miss Hearst also told her friend that she did not want to make any public statements until she was released on bail.

"I would just as soon give it myself in person, and it'll be a, a, revolutionary feminist perspective totally and, ah, um, you know, I never got, I guess I'll just tell you, like, my politics are real different from a, way back when (deleted)."

The transcript went on:

Miss Tobin: "Right."

Miss Hearst: "(laughter) Obviously, (laughter)."

Miss Tobin: "Right."

Miss Hearst: "(deleted) and so this creates all kinds of problems for me in terms of a defense."

EMILY HARRIS IN CUSTODY

(UPI)

$500,000 Bail For the Harrises

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Bail for William and Emily Harris, Patricia Hearst's companions in an alleged SLA crime spree, was fixed at a half-million dollars Thursday by a judge who said "just a casual reading of the newspapers" was enough to convince him they would flee if they could.

The Harrises were arraigned on 18 felony charges carrying sentences up to life in prison amid security as heavy as any ever seen in a courtroom here.

Rifle-toting officers stood watch on the roof of the building, and the courtroom in the Central Jail was surrounded by dozens of sheriff's deputies and marshals. All those entering were searched and passed through metal detectors.

The Harrises were brought in with their hands cuffed behind them to chains around their waists. Other than to acknowledge their identities, they said nothing during the 25-minute arraignment.

Municipal Court Judge Eric Younger — son of California Attorney General Evelle J. Younger — denied requests for a lower bail, calling them "extreme flight risks."

"The likelihood of flight in this case is as great as any I've ever handled," he said. "That is evident to anyone who has information about their behavior over the past months. Just a casual reading of newspapers and other reports from the media would give that information."

He scheduled a pretrial hearing for Oct. 8.

Contempt Citations Mount Against Boston Teachers

By United Press International

Five more Boston Teachers Union officials were under contempt of court citations and fines against the union mounted at $25,000 a day but striking teachers remained off the job, crippling the nation's oldest school system.

A series of teachers' strikes across the nation affected some 311,200 students today.

The Boston strike entered its fifth day despite court sanctions against the walkout.

In citing three more teachers for contempt, Suffolk Superior Judge Samuel Adams made a clean sweep of the Boston Teachers Union's executive board. "I cannot countenance the continued violation of the orders of this court," he said.

The court held Philip Perrone, Thomas Gosnell and Charles McGowan guilty of violating a court order. Union President Henry Robinson and Executive Vice President Joan A. Buckley were cited for contempt Tuesday.

The two top officers, along with Perrone and Gosnell, were found to have been involved in invoking possible sanctions against teachers working during the strike. John McMahon, attorney for Robinson and Miss Buckley, said they would try to see that teachers reporting for work "will not suffer illegal penalties."

The strike began costing the union $25,000 a day in fines today. Adams, who previously had ordered a fine of $5,000 a day for each day the strike continued in violation of a back to work order, said Thursday the fine would be upped to $25,000 a day effective today.

About 84,000 students have been affected by the Boston strike. School officials said about 13 percent were in class Thursday, compared to 12 percent Wednesday. Before the start of the strike Monday, attendance was only 75 percent due to the dispute over court-ordered busing.

An appeals court justice at Albany, Thursday delayed the imprisonment of 12 Schenectady, N.Y., teachers who had been scheduled to begin serving prison terms Thursday for disregarding a court's back-to-work order.

Schenectady teachers returned to work Monday and the appeals court judge stayed the imprisonment of the 12 teachers pending a hearing on their appeal.

The Plattsburgh Teachers Association accepted a tentative agreement Thursday. Although schools have stayed open there, attendance by the 3,100 students had dropped about 50 percent.

Other strikes in upstate New York affected some 31,000 students.

No negotiations were scheduled in Wilmington, Del., where teachers have been in strike for three weeks, affecting some 14,200 students.

More stalemates continued in Pennsylvania, where 19 walkouts kept 6,673 teachers and 124,941 students out of the classrooms.

North Vernon, Ind., teachers struck Thursday to support demands for higher pay. Only a few teachers showed up for work and classes for the district's 4,500 children were dismissed.

Striking Tinley Park, Ill., teachers decided late Thursday to end their one-day strike and return to school today. The strike affected about 2,700 students.

But teachers in Sauk Village, Ill., remained on strike and school administrators sought to open classrooms to the district's 2,300 students today with substitute teachers.

Gov. Shapp Joins Dem Sweepstakes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gov. Milton J. Shapp began a three-day tour of four states today looking for money and voter support for his candidacy for the 1976 Democratic presidential nomination.

The Pennsylvania governor, who announced his candidacy Thursday, is the only incumbent governor in the field of eight announced Democratic candidates.

In his announcement statement, Shapp, 63, promised full employment and a revitalized economy and said he would talk "common sense" to voters.

Shapp scheduled rallies in Ohio, Illinois, Massachusetts and Florida. He also planned to meet today with Chicago Mayor Richard Daley.

"In 1976, the last thing the American people need is another smiling politician or spellbinding orator spewing political rhetoric," Shapp said. "What we need is a leader with deep concern for the people and their problems and determination to carry out a sound program to resolve those problems."

Shapp, a multimillionaire and cable television pioneer, called for massive new federal spending that he said would end the economic slump.

"I don't think there's any front-runner now because none of the Democratic candidates out in the hustings have shown any appeal to the people," Shapp said. "I'm going to do a lot better and in four to six months will be out in front."

The other announced candidates are Sens. Henry Jackson of Washington and Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona, former governors Jimmy Carter of Georgia and Terry Sanford of North Carolina, former Sen. Fred Harris of Oklahoma and 1972 vice presidential candidate Sargent Shriver.

Gov. George Wallace of Alabama and Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., are expected to make their formal announcements later.

In a campaign appearance Thursday in Cleveland, his hometown, Shapp said, "The only purpose of government is to serve the legitimate needs of people: national defense in times of emergency, the economy, education, health and law enforcement."

Under a new law, the federal government will match every dollar raised by a candidate if he can collect $5,000 in contributions of $250 or less in 20 different states. Shapp said he has raised $100,000 so far but has won enough contributions to qualify for federal matching funds only in Pennsylvania.

District 8 Candidates Outline Platform

NEW PALTZ
In a joint press release, the four Democratic candidates for the Ulster County Legislature from the towns of Gardiner, New Paltz and Shawangunk—Thomas E. Nyquist, Barbara Pitt, Valerie Eldridge and Victor McCord—today outlined an eight-point platform.

The candidates called for increased communication by legislators with citizens and establishment of long range fiscal priorities.

Concerning welfare, the candidates said costs are high because of unemployment and called on the legislature to make every effort to attract industry "in keeping with environmental guidelines" to the area to provide more jobs.

Noting that there have been "two major scandals" within the last three years concerning the county jail and the highway department, the four Democrats want closer supervision of county departments and agencies and for a line item budget for the highway department.

Calling for rational environmental planning, the District 8 candidates said, "Serious thought must be given to such issues as the future of the Minnewaska property, the possibility of a county solid waste facility the threat of atomic plants and the need for planned growth of the county."

In the area of consumer protection, the candidates said the county should assume an active role in representing residents when excessive demands are made by companies, including utilities, or when the consumer is cheated.

"There are two ways one can ease the burden of the taxpayer," the candidates suggested. "One is to lower taxes; but in doing so essential services can be jeopardized. The other is to assure that the best qualified people are hired and that these people put in a good day's work for a day's pay."

The candidates also called for the establishment of toll-free telephone service to the county offices from outlying districts.

Election . . . 1975 ★

County Waste Crisis Role

SHAWANGUNK
Valerie Eldridge, Democratic candidate for the Ulster County Legislature from District 8, has proposed that the county play a greater role in solving the solid waste disposal crisis that faces many of the individual townships.

"It is becoming more difficult for the individual towns to cope adequately with this problem," said candidate Eldridge. "By pooling our resources at the county level we can reverse this distressing trend, we can take advantage of experienced personnel, sophisticated equipment and current technologies which we could not afford as individual communities."

"It is up to the county legislature to take a position of leadership, whether it be in developing regional sanitary landfills or a countywide resource recovery system."

In making reference to the difficulties the Town of Shawangunk has experienced in establishing a new landfill site, Ms. Eldridge commented, "The Republican dominated legislature has been sitting on its hand too long . . .

better leadership could save us considerable money."

Although she noted that Shawangunk officials have acted sincerely in attempting to cure the town's disposal problems, she added, "Since lack of knowledge should never be an excuse for wasting the taxpayers' money, I cannot excuse the Shawangunk officials from having to take responsibility for what has been happening. However, I would like to point to the fact that it is time for the county legislature to step in."

Ms. Eldridge maintained that a county-wide system of refuse management would "protect the citizens' health and well-being, eliminate careless destruction of our environment (and) also avoid costly mistakes such as those of Shawangunk."

She added that the other Democratic candidates from District 8—Thomas Nyquist, Barbara Pitt and Victor McCord—support the idea of a county-managed waste disposal system.

Saugerties Ghost Writes

SAUGERTIES
Republican Town Chairman Michael Catalinotto charged today that Democratic candidate for supervisor Paul Miller appears to be something of a thin-skinned "ghost writer."

Said Catalinotto, "the Democratic supervisor candidate appears to be ghost writing press stories which are then released in the name of other persons. The releases indicate that the Democratic supervisor candidate resents criticism of his radical ideas," the chairman said.

Catalinotto suggested that if the Democratic candidate "can't stand the heat, he should get out of the kitchen". He went on to say that it is an elementary part of the American political process that the proposals made by candidates are critically examined by the opposing sides so that their merits and weaknesses are brought to the attention of the voting public.

"If he does not like the way the elective process operates, then he should not seek public office," Catalinotto said.

The Republican chairman concluded by saying, "so long as the Democratic Supervisor candidate continues to be a peripatetic purveyor of false hopes and elusive dreams," then as leader of the Republican party, he will continue to carry out his responsibility to alert the public and avoid its being deceived by "high sounding proposals which are merely publicity gimmicks and have no merit."

We Hold These Truths... A Chronicle of America

September 25, 1775:

Ethan Allen and John Brown — both important in the May 10 capture of Ticonderoga — are sent ahead of General Richard Montgomery's advancing expeditionary force into Canada. Their assignment is to enlist Canadian volunteers for the American army. So successful are they that the two resolve to use their recruits in an attack on Montreal. With a total force of fewer than 300, Allen is to advance from below the town, and Brown from above. At night, Allen succeeds in ferrying his 110 men across the St. Lawrence by canoe; Brown fails. Unable to withdraw before dawn, Allen attacks without Brown. Encountering 235 troops commanded by Sir Guy Carleton, Allen and about 40 of his men are captured; Allen remains a prisoner until May, 1778. The adventure severely damages American prestige with the Canadians and the Indians.

Mail Snooping

Recent revelations by Sen. Frank Church (D-Idaho), chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee, that for a number of years the CIA secretly opened the mail of prominent political leaders, including Richard M. Nixon, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy (D-Mass.) and Church himself, stink to high heaven.

It may never be known all the illegal acts the CIA has performed for so many years. Yet, if this information given by Sen. Church is true, this has to rank as one of the all-time despicable actions of the Central Intelligence Agency.

Privacy—the right to have it and the right to keep it—is one of the most cherished possessions we have in this country. To abuse this privacy is unforgivable, no matter what reason the CIA might give.

Only a full investigation and public hearings into Sen. Church's charge will disclose whether private mail was opened or not.

If it was, then our Constitution was violated and federal statutes were also broken. Even testimony given by former CIA counterintelligence agent chief James Angleton does not make mail opening right.

He testified before the committee that the mail opening program was an "indispensable" espionage tool aimed primarily at gleaning information from Soviet-bloc nations.

We don't know how this fits into letters written to Nixon, to Kennedy, to Church or as a matter of fact, to grandma or grandpa.

This charge by Sen. Church must be investigated to its conclusion. And, if the CIA has been doing this mail opening, the results of the probe could make Watergate and its related activities seem like a picnic.

Privacy is a precious commodity. It should always remain that way and not the CIA or any other agency, under pretense of obtaining confidential information vital to the United States of America, should be allowed to invade that privacy.

Eyes on N.Y.

It must be assumed that big city mayors across the nation were watching—with apprehension, probably—as New York Mayor Abraham Beame was pinched recently between the threat of municipal bankruptcy and the understandable desire to retain control of the city.

The mayor's choices remain unenviable. Barring last-minute federal aid, he can default on the city's obligations, including a $100 million payroll, or relinquish budgetary authority to a state-sponsored agency. Potential investors in notes aimed at relieving New York City's financial crunch are insisting presumably on hard evidence that future spending would be geared to revenues.

New York City's woes, simply because of the city's size, are awe-inspiring.

But no city is immune if it fails to weigh the demands of the public for services and of public employees for higher wages against the realism of taxing limits.

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON—Deep in the bowels of the Pentagon, another plumbers squad has been operating in the style of the notorious White House plumbers.

Its existence was mentioned by Bob Woodward, the star Watergate reporter, in the Washington Post. He wrote about an alleged White House plot to assassinate me in late 1971 or early 1972.

He quoted W. Donald Stewart, a former Pentagon investigator, as saying he had been given "every resource in the book" to stop the leaks to our column. One effort alone, Stewart estimated, cost $100,000.

Stewart claimed he had traced stories in our column to more than 60 classified documents. "Stewart said the leaks to (Jack) Anderson infuriated the White House to the point that then-President Nixon worried about his ability to conduct foreign affairs," wrote Woodward.

The former President revealed the details of the secret Vietnam peace negotiations several weeks ahead of schedule, according to Stewart, because "they were afraid Jack Anderson was going to scoop them."

The truth is, of course, that we exposed Nixon's misrepresentations about the Vietnam war, the India-Pakistan conflict and the ITT-Nixon connections. We also revealed in 1971 that the CIA had attempted to assassinate undesirable foreign leaders.

Ironically, our story about the CIA's plot against Cuban Premier Fidel Castro described an attempt to poison him with pellets that would leave no trace. According to Woodward, that was how the White House intended to do away with me.

What upset Nixon the most, according to our White House sources, was our revelation that billionaire Howard Hughes had sent two $50,000 cash bundles, one to Key Biscayne, the other to San Clemente, for Nixon's use in between his presidential campaigns. The money was accepted by Nixon's friend, Bebe Rebozo.

It wasn't national security but political security, in other words, that caused the former President to unleash both the White House plumbers and the Pentagon plumbers upon us.

Stewart headed the Pentagon plumbers, who operated out of room 3E993 in the Pentagon. In the spring of 1971, they mistakenly fingered a mild, bespectacled civilian employee, named Gene Smith, as one of our sources.

Smith later told us that Stewart had bullied and badgered him, scolding him with obscenities. Stewart swears that his interrogation of Smith was polite and proper.

In the end, Smith was hauled before a grand jury which concluded that he was innocent of any wrongdoing.

The most graphic account of the Pentagon plumbers in action has been provided by Navy Yeoman Charles Radford, who was also suspected of leaking information to us.

Testifying behind closed doors, he told the Senate Armed Services Committee how the Pentagon Plumbers had wrung a confession out of him. They grilled him abusively, strapped him to a lie detector, brought him back for more questioning and then repeated the process all over again, Radford testified until he broke down and wept.

Radford identified Stewart as his chief inquisitor. Stewart called him a traitor, threatened him with prison and screamed obscenities at him, said Radford.

"He was convinced that I was the one who had passed information to Jack Anderson . . ." Radford said. "He used a lot of words, just a whole string of gutter language that you can imagine."

As the slim, soft-spoken yeoman recounted it, "I was on the machine and then I went back in the other room and talked to him, and then I came back on the machine."

"Did they use a rubber hose on you?" asked then-Sen. Harold Hughes, D-Iowa, incredulously.

"No," replied Radford, "but I would not have been surprised. (Stewart) was pretty angry. He was almost hysterical . . . His eyes were bloodshot, and he looked like he was mad. He looked like he was mad."

"Were you physically threatened in any way?" pressed Hughes.

"No," said Radford, "he did not lay his hands on me in any way. He pounded the desk. He made motions like I supposed he would leap across the desk at me at any moment. But he did not touch me in any way."

"Then you would be threatened this way and then you would be taken in for a polygraph examination?" asked Hughes.

"Yes sir, as I recall, that is how it happened."

"And then you would be called back in for more interrogation after the polygraph test?" asked the senator.

"Yes sir . . ." said Radford. "After I broke down, that is when they let me go home. That is when it ended, after I told them I was passing information . . ."

He confessed that he had slipped information from Henry Kissinger's desk and briefcase, not to us, but to the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

"Then they stopped. Then they let me go home," he said.

"You broke down and cried?" asked Hughes.

"Yes sir," said the yeoman.

Footnote: Stewart has strenuously denied any abuse of Radford and told us that the entire investigation was conducted by the book.

"They don't want shellfish that taste good, Charlie . . ."

Inside Report

Ronnie Reagan's Grass-Rooters

By Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

SAN DIEGO—Failure of the Ford campaign to scare Ronald Reagan out of running for President by preempting his California base was confirmed at the convention here of the state's inflexibly conservative Republican regulars.

Nobody watching Reagan perform at the 1,100-member Republican state central committee's meeting could doubt he will challenge President Ford. Moreover, although Ford operatives have spooned off the cream of the state's Republican establishment, grassroots workers meeting here still love Ronnie. If an underdog Reagan can win early primaries he would pose a lethal threat to Mr. Ford in California's winner-take-all Republican primary in June.

In short, the Ford campaign's concentration on California may be largely wasted. If Reagan is still viable in June, he would be favored in California. Consequently, the new Ford effort must switch to the early primary terrain of snowy New Hampshire and sunny Florida, and out of the boardrooms of San Francisco and Los Angeles.

The battle of those boardrooms has been waged successfully for the President by Leon Parma, an old Ford crony from Washington, now a rich San Diego businessman, and Stu Spencer of Spencer-Roberts Associates in Los Angeles, one of the nation's leading political professionals. Over six months ago, they signed up hundreds of prominent Californians—including Reaganites who found White House incumbency irresistible.

But the purpose of discouraging Reagan's candidacy by preempting California was not achieved. Instead Reagan's temper was activated by Ford defections—particularly by Republican state chairman Paul Haerle, Reagan's erstwhile aide and hand-tailored protegee. Nor was Reagan influenced by coolness toward his candidacy from longtime financial supporters, who had been lobbied furiously by Mr. Ford.

Reagan was particularly incensed when he was not invited to last weekend's convention by Haerle (who privately advised Republicans he wanted "new faces"). In his Los Angeles office last week, Reagan told us that decision reflected Haerle's record as chairman. In what way? "It was very stupid," Reagan replied. But the women's caucus intervened, asking Reagan to address its meeting Friday night.

That meeting, overflowing with both sexes, witnessed a vintage Reagan performance. Casting aside his standard speech, he ad-libbed about Republicans choosing whether to practice "politics as usual" in 1976 and declared a contest for the presidential nomination need not be divisive. As usual, he said nothing, good or bad, about Gerald R. Ford. Reagan's reception was tumultuous.

Just before the Saturday luncheon, someone carrying a Ford-for-President placard elicited scattered applause—quickly drowned out when a Reagan placard was hoisted. Widely popular State Atty. Gen. Evelle Younger received a cool reception when he finished his luncheon address by praising the President.

The state central committee is to the right of most Californians and even many California Republicans but pretty accurately reflects Republican precinct workers who win California primary elections. Overwhelming pro-Reagan sentiment inside the committee (with Mr. Ford possibly outvoted 2 to 1) and even heavier Reagan superiority among volunteer groups (Young Republicans, Women's Federation, California Republican Assembly) suggests trouble for the President here.

Reagan's strength is in the party's conservative foot soldiers, not its more moderate leadership—precisely the case 10 years ago when Reagan began running for governor. Once again Reagan was the outsider, thanking the women's caucus for inviting him with the wistful postscript: "I didn't think I was coming to San Diego." When aggrieved right-wing leaders privately complained that Reagan is "coming home" to the true believers he spurned after they elected him governor, Reagan replied with a mea culpa: sometimes it is the very ones closest to us that we take for granted.

The weekend also showed the Ford campaign has failed to neutralize the closest of Reagan's money men: Holmes Tuttle, the millionaire Los Angeles auto dealer who declined to attend Mr. Ford's speech at Pepperdine University in Los Angeles. What nettled Tuttle was the presence of Pepperdine president William Banowsky, who owes his seat on the Republican National Committee to Reagan but has endorsed Mr. Ford.

Though in California again last weekend for "non-political" events, Mr. Ford did not come to San Diego to confront the Reaganites. Instead Ford campaign manager Howard (Bo) Callaway privately asked questions about how to run against Reagan next June.

But if there is a primary showdown here, President Ford will be in trouble. The best way to combat Reagan's grass-roots in California is to stop Reagan in early primaries. Accordingly, there is a certain irrelevancy about Callaway's four long days in San Diego and Mr. Ford's scheduled October visit to California, the President's third in two months. California, recipient of lavish Ford campaign attention, now takes on far less urgent priority than New Hampshire, the state it has largely ignored.

Pity the Beautiful Daughter

Jim Bishop: Reporter

The St. Johns—who, by the way, pronounced their name Sinnjin—had two daughters. Adelaide was the first. She was almost too pretty. Frances was plain, almost painfully plain.

Seldom was there such disparity between two children. Father St. John, a lawyer, dismissed the problem by saying, "They'll grow out of it." Mother St. John wrung a kerchief between her hands. And sometimes a few tears.

The St. Johns had affluence. They had a big house on Rumson Road with six baths. They had two maids in black uniforms with white lace aprons and white caps. They had a seven-passenger Packard, a chauffeur, and a cellar full of wines which Mr. St. John didn't understand.

When the girls were tiny, Father and Mother decided to even the scales by exuding more love to Frances. She would need it, poor thing. Thus when Frances returned from school with a drawing of a red apple, Mother and Father ooh'd and aah'd and told each other, "We have a Michelangelo in the family."

Adelaide returned from school with subtle drawings of sunsets with a big Indian chief in the foreground. Her parents said, "That's nice, honey. Go comb your hair."

This went on all through school. Adelaide was overcome when her Father pecked a goodnight kiss on her forehead. Frances frolicked in love, being hugged and kissed and praised for everything and for nothing.

The disparity between the two grew greater. Adelaide had long taffy hair which fell in natural waves. Her skin was as soft as a cake of damp soap. The big blue eyes seemed to illuminate Adelaide's face.

Frances had a nose which dominated her face. Her eyes were small and squinty. The hair was brown or henna, depending upon the season. She had a habit of taking everything she wanted—never asking permission.

Father wanted the girls to go to the best school. He selected a private girls' school in Jersey. It was a Catholic school, and the St. Johns had never quite decided which God they would worship. Mrs. St. John liked the school because it cost more.

There the girls grew into young ladies. In the senior year, they were invited to dances. Frances always accepted at once. She danced well and she was unashamed to like boys.

Adelaide had excused. She was never sure of herself within the family, so she felt less confident outside. Frances had a ball. The fellows thought she was a natural comedienne. The beautiful Adelaide often cried into a pillow at home.

One night Frances came home tiptoeing on bottles. She awakened the house to tell everybody she was engaged. To whom? To Reggie Moore, that's who. Reggie's parents had died in a plane crash and left millions. He had his own personal polo field.

Adelaide kissed her ugly sister wildly and wished her much happiness. Frances couldn't understand why everyone was surprised that she had won a handsome millionaire. What else?

Frances was married. She had cars and servants and a polo mallet. Adelaide surrendered. Friends said she was so gorgeous to look at that she would be an old maid.

The beautiful one made up her mind to marry the first man who asked. At a canteen she met a bashful boy. Ron Huxley was a sailor. He saw Adelaide night after night. They were two losers. One night he gulped fast and said, "Will you marry me?" She said, "Yes."

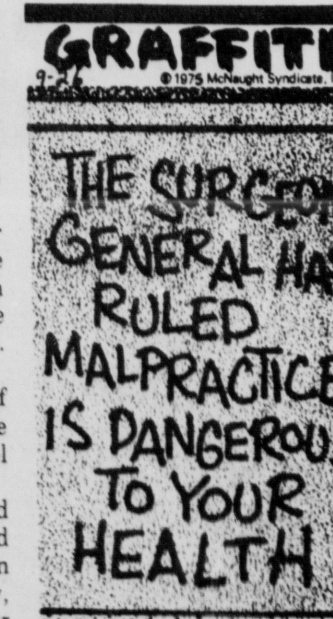

Father and Mother St. John thought it was in poor taste to marry a bashful boy with no money. Ron told Adelaide that he had orders to "ship out. Wait for me," he begged. She said she would.

She went to the chapel at the girls' school. "Dear God," she said, "I never had a boy before. If you will bring Ron home to me, I will visit you here every day for five years. Every single day."

Huxley was a fireman aboard the heavy cruiser "Chicago." It was sunk off Guadalcanal. He survived with horrible burns. The Navy flew him to a hospital in Texas. Adelaide went to him. He rambled out of his mind. "You're home," she said. "That's all that matters."

It wasn't all that mattered. Ron Huxley died of uremic poisoning. Adelaide had character. She wouldn't double-cross God. She went to the chapel every day. It was her side of the bargain.

There she met a young seminarian. Adelaide did what she had to do. She seduced him. Mother and Father St. John never mention Adelaide. When last heard from, she was living in Berkeley, California. Frances always felt a deep pity for her sister.

Sincerity Doubted

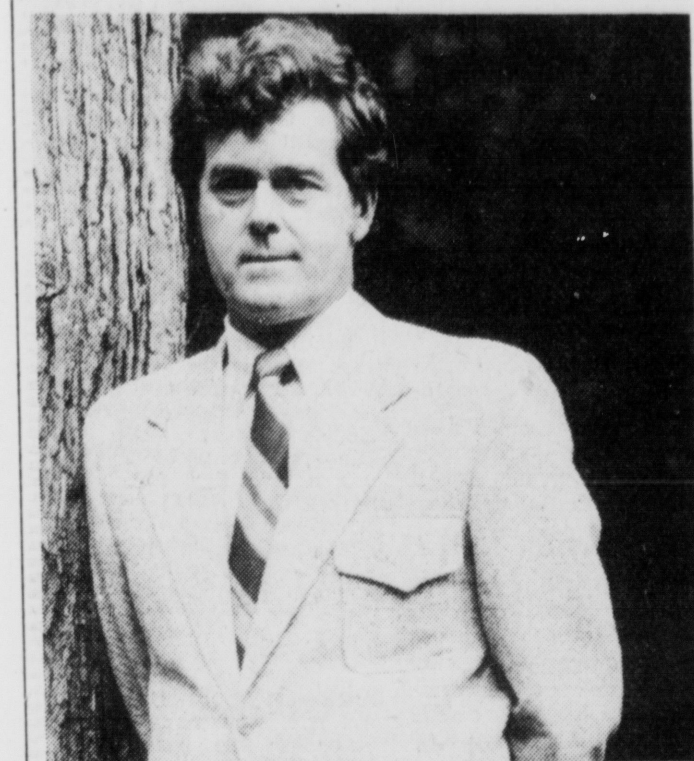

KINGSTON
The six Republican candidates for the Ulster County Legislature from the City of Kingston have scored recent remarks by Democratic legislative candidate Kay Quick as "incongruous and insincere."

Emma Aprea, Adam Geuss, John Machione, Robert Matthews, Mel Mones and Frank Stauble, in a joint statement to news media said: "Mrs. Quick's call for a pay freeze for county legislators is just a ploy to grab some fast headlines. She seems to have forgotten that barely two years ago she asked for the same while her husband, Kingston Alderman Don Quick, was accepting a pay increase from the Democratically-controlled Common Council. This followed by only two years another pay hike. On both occasions, the council sneaked them in several months after an election and with Mrs. Quick's husband a member of the Democratic hierarchy."

"We, as more responsible candidates, propose that, due to the ever-encroaching inflationary spiral upon local budgets, the Common Council and the County Legislature should hold the line."

"Unlike Mrs. Quick's amateurish probe for publicity our approach was to contact County Legislature Chairman Peter J. Savago, who assured us for public pronouncement that as chairman he is emphatically against any salary increase now, and will for his part fight against any such attempt."

If both Mr. and Mrs. Quick are elected, their combined salaries at the present level would approach $7,000, higher than the mean of the average worker in Ulster County. Although this situation would be quite legal, there remains a questionable aspect to the practice."

Sleight On Slate?

TOWN OF KINGSTON
Harry Sleight has announced his intention to seek one of two councilman positions, giving Republican voters in the Town of Kingston a choice of four candidates for the position of town councilman.

Sleight, a lifelong town resident, has served as chairman of the planning board for the past three years. During this time he also served as a member of the Ulster County Planning Board and was recently appointed chairman of the Town of Kingston Zoning Commission.

The Republican caucus will be held at 8 p.m. on Saturday in the Sawkill fire house.

Hits Welfare Money Vote

TOWN OF ULSTER

"A grandstand play." That's what Janet C. Yallum, Democratic candidate for the Ulster County Legislature from District 5, has called the Ulster County Legislature's action in voting only Medicaid funds needed by the Department of Social Services and postponing approval of Aid to Dependent Children funds.

"The county must appropriate these funds," she said. "The legislators know it. If such obligations are not met, state and federal funds are jeopardized and the State Department of Social Services can force it through a court action."

"Making the social services commissioner come hat in hand for more money as each deadline approaches demeans his office and the responsibility of his department," Mrs. Yallum said.

"The fault lies—and every savvy legislator knows it—within the programs themselves and how they are written. Only if pressure is put on congress to rewrite federal guidelines will there be any relief. This is the action that must be taken — anything else is meaningless window dressing."

"Legislators might better spend their time in some productive sessions on how to attract industry to this area and how to protect the jobs in the county, rather than posturing and moaning over an issue in which they have no choice."

'Food Prices'

Big V President at Zonta Luncheon

Slightly Rising Prices But Nothing Drastic

By Dorothy A. Narel

Two agencies of the federal government — the Council on Wage and Price Stability and the Federal Trade Commission have concluded, in a 49-page report that increased profit-taking did not contribute to higher food prices. Both attributed higher prices to increased costs of raw materials and increases in operating costs for food processing and distribution.

A. Richard Rosenberg, president of Big V Supermarkets, Inc., speaking recently at a luncheon - meeting of Zonta Club of Kingston, a service organization for executive women, also added: "It is based on supply and demand . . . legislation has proved unsuccessful in this direction . . . and while many prices are on the decrease, (wheat, corn and sugar) the consumer can expect slightly rising food prices but nothing drastic."

Increased profit-taking did NOT contribute to higher food prices. Higher prices attributed to increased costs of raw materials and increases in operating costs.

As president of the Big V family of supermarkets, 20 in all, Rosenberg is keenly aware of the fact that erosion in consumer confidence has changed buying habits. He has stated that " . . . as a responsible citizen and an executive of the food industry I am always happy to discuss the food industry for many times we have found ourselves praised or damned, sometimes with, and sometimes without good reason."

Food price increases have taken a major bite out of consumer income in the past two years. One impact of this development has been to stimulate an unsurpassed public interest in the economics of many business enterprises including the food distribution industry, according to a background paper prepared by the Food Distribution Information Council.

And as Mr. Rosenberg told Zontians meeting in the new Kingston Manor House, "You are going to see more food related issues in this election year. We, in the food business, are political fodder. We make less than a penny on each dollar but it's the turn-over that counts. For us it is a good profit but, we will be said to be profiteering."

Rosenberg discussed pricing in the sugar industry and its affect on related items such as mayonnaise, pickles, jam and anything using sugar; the disappearance of the Anchovita, used in making fertilizer and for making fish meal which, in turn, feeds animals; and our dependence upon oil, flour and sugar. He also stressed:

"We are now one world and the United States will balance off with the rest of the world in terms of Supply and Demand — unless we become isolationists." Asked if he could estimate what third world pressures might have on the general increase in food prices, Rosenberg stated: "I have no way of knowing. I am basically a retailer — I am not an economist. My viewpoint is a very limited one."

The luncheon lecture turned up questions on warehousing of sugar and wheat, the killing of animals in lieu of selling them at a low price, and the sale of wheat to the Russians. Even unit pricing was examined. About the latter, Rosenberg said:

"We, in the food business, are political fodder. We make less than a penny on each dollar but it's the turn-over that counts. For us it is a good profit but, of course, we will be said to be "profiteering."

"Unit pricing is not going over well with the majority of consumers. It is a super thing and once it's installed it doesn't take much to maintain it. Unit pricing is there for the woman who is really seeking the lowest prices." Rosenberg, who is a former president of the New York State Food Merchants, also feels there is a possibility of saving consumers money if the industry is not required to stamp prices on goods.

In concluding his remarks, Rosenberg drew a comparison of food prices in the United States with those in Japan, a country he visited about four years ago. There, one and a half pounds of grapes, wrapped in purple paper cost $9 in American money. Dinner for four cost $350. "The rest of the world thinks we are crazy here. They feel our food in this country is a bargain, the Big V president said.

Big V has 20 supermarkets and was established 25 years ago in Florida, N.Y. In 1959, Big V became a part of Shop Rite and Kingston's store was open in 1962.

Red Hook AFS Outlines Fund-Raising Events

Mrs. Joyce Riffenburg, president, Red Hook Chapter, American Field Service, outlined fund-raising activities for the coming year at the group's first meeting of the season.

A garage and bake sale is planned for Saturday, Oct. 4 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hal Field, Route 9 North, Red Hook. Items to be featured will be used winter sports equipment and clothing.

The Chapter will also hold its fifth Annual Spaghetti Supper on Saturday, Oct. 25 at the United Methodist Church, Red Hook. Mrs. Ann Glowienka is dinner chairman. There will be continuous servings from 5 to 7 p.m. Tickets will be available from Chapter members and from members of the high school International Club, and at the door. About $500 has been received from the Chapter's fund-raising letter. The goal for the letter is $1,200. Those wishing to contribute may send their tax-free contribution to: Red Hook AFS, William Bain, First National Bank, Red Hook.

Following the business portion of the meeting, Mrs. Riffenburg explained the Americans Abroad Program. Any student wishing to apply to go abroad with AFS next year should contact Miss Jeanette Sargent, James Marino, or Mrs. Karen Roberts at the high school.

It was announced that Darryl Work, AFS student from New Zealand to Red Hook 1970-71, will be visiting his host family, Mr. and Mrs. Hal Field during the coming Christmas vacation.

A letter was read from Jacques Hryshko, this year's AFS student from Red Hook to Austria. Jacques said that he is very happy in his host home and is thoroughly enjoying his AFS year so far.

Anyone interested in more information about the AFS program may contact Mrs. Joyce Riffenburg, Chapter president or Mrs. Sally Pulver, area representative, both of Red Hook.

'Millstream Point' Sign Unveiling

Woodstock Town Supervisor Verner May acted as master of ceremonies during an unveiling program recently of the name-designating sign "Millstream Point" on the completed environmental improvement landscaping project in Woodstock.

The project, spearheaded by the Woodstock Garden Club, is located at the junction of Route 375 and the town road in Woodstock — Millstream Road — and the bridge crossing the stream to Route 212.

Noted Woodstock artist John Pike unveiled the new sign during the recent ceremonies.

Mrs. Henry S. Rade, president of the Woodstock Garden Club, welcomed the gathering, including many state and local dignitaries.

Speakers included Harry Osterhoudt Jr., resident engineer of Kingston, a representative of the New York State Department of Transportation; Gregory G. Gebbert, chairman, Woodstock Commission on Conservation of Environment; Edgar Leaycraft, Woodstock town historian and chairman of the bicentennial activities for the town as well as important interested residents of Woodstock.

All of the speakers commented upon the Garden Club's program of environmental improvement projects for the town and how far-reaching its benefits are for everyone.

Also taking part in the unveiling ceremonies were:

Robert Eilenberg of Shady, scoutmaster of Troop 34, Town of Woodstock; H. Phillips Eighmey, assistant scoutmaster along with scouts from their troop; and Mrs. William G. Fava Jr. of Bearsville, leader of Troop 217, Ulster County Girl Scouts and scouts from her troop.

Jerry Simonetti of Woodstock and his "Red Eye Band" furnished music for the event while John LaValle of "Sight and Sound" in Woodstock, engineered and donated the public address system.

Mrs. M. Leslie Denning, immediate past president of the Garden Club, coordinated the Millstream project plans.

LWV Founder To Speak to Auxiliary

Dr. Erna Moss, founder and former president of the League of Women Voters, will be the guest speaker at the fall meeting of the Benedictine Hospital Auxiliary. The meeting will be held in the auditorium of the Senior Residence on Wednesday evening, Oct. 1.

Dr. Moss, who is chairman of the Foreign Language Department at Ulster County Community College, will speak on the Equal Rights Amendment. There will be a question and answer period following her talk.

The Auxiliary meeting will begin with a covered dish supper at 7 p.m. The business meeting will follow at 8 p.m. Reservations are necessary for the covered dish supper and those who plan to attend should make reservations with Mrs. Alice Engers or Mrs. Ann Maurer, co-chairpersons. Deadline for reservations is Monday, Sept. 29. Those who attend the supper should either bring a covered dish or pay a nominal fee.

Paltz Channel 12 Receives Grant

The Community Communications Project of New Paltz, Inc., which prepares programming for Channel 12 in New Paltz, has been recognized by the America the Beautiful Fund of New York by the award of a "seed" grant of $1,000 toward the rehabilitation of their studios located in the old railroad station on lower Main Street.

The America the Beautiful Fund is a non-profit organization which gives technical and occasional financial aid to innovative community projects designed to protect the quality of the natural, historic and man-made environment. Channel 12's efforts to rehabilitate this historic building were found to be worthy of recognition and support. The grant will be used toward the purchase of materials needed for the station beautification. It is hoped that New Paltz area citizens will contribute their money and labor so that the work can be completed before winter sets in.

Anyone wishing to become involved with this Channel 12 project should contact Eileen Channer at New Paltz.

Funds for this grant were made available through the New York State Council on the Arts as part of a growing, national movement to rediscover the vitality of local cultural activities.

'Share a Song and a Smile,' Sweet Adelines' Theme

"Share a Song and a Smile" with Sweet Adelines will be the theme October 1-7 when over 25,000 women throughout the United States, Canada, Panama Canal and England will "Share a Song" with hospital patients, senior citizens, shoppers, school children and civic groups.

Colonial City Chapter, one of the more than 600 choruses of this organization dedicated to teaching, learning and singing the American Folk art of four-part harmony, barbershop style, will join in this annual event when they entertain the residents of Sax-on Hill House in Krumville during this week. Colonial City Chapter has planned a show featuring their recent show tunes, the songs from competition and a sing along to include guests, under the direction of Barbara Bondar. The Chapter's popular quartet, The Scatternotes also will be featured.

Additional Sweet Adeline "service through music" included a performance for the United Way at Academy Green on Sept. 13. It is through participation of this sort that Sweet Adelines hope to fulfill the title of their theme song—Harmonize the World.

AARP Officers Are Installed

Evan E. Pritchard, assistant to the State Director, North-eastern New York American Association of Retired Persons, formally installed the officers of the Kingston Chapter No. 2039 AARP. The ceremony took place at a dinner meeting held at the Holiday Inn in Kingston earlier this month.

The officers installed were: George Holmes, president; Mrs. Emma Aprea, first vice-president; William Blair, second vice-president; Mrs. Adelaide Ashley, third vice president; Mrs. Lucille Davidson, secretary; Mrs. Lillian Martin, assistant secretary; Egbert Maxwell, treasurer and Mrs. Sophie Cornelske, assistant treasurer.

During the installation ceremony, Pritchard asked the members to pledge their support to their new officers. He indicated that the organization cannot survive and prosper without the aid of its members. In his comments after the ceremony he urged the members to become involved in their chapter and help it to become an active civic organization. He noted that the motto of AARP is "To serve—not to be served." He stated that AARP, along with NRTA (National Retired Teachers Association), has a membership of over 9,000,000 and growing steadily with over 100,000 applications each month.

Holmes, the new president, also urged the members to become involved in their chapter and help it to become a civic, social and recreational organization. The chapter is already involved in community affairs by the appointment of Mr. Holmes to the Advisory Board of the Ulster County Office of the Aging. He also announced that Anthony Triulzi, administrator of Kingston Hospital, will be the guest speaker at the October meeting. Mrs. Antoinette Tennant, director of the Ulster County Office of the Aging, will be the speaker at the November meeting. The chapter is also planning a Christmas dinner meeting Dec. 18. Recreational meetings, with free bingo and other social activities are also being planned.

John Garon, past president of the chapter, was praised for his work for the chapter during the past two years, as well as the other retiring officers. Holmes presented Mr. Garon with a past president's pin in recognition of his service.

Mrs. Katharine Lacey was honored for her service in organizing this chapter of AARP in Kingston. She was presented with a life membership in the local chapter and also a corsage by Mrs. Emma Aprea, first vice-president, on behalf of the organization.

Papa Bear provided music for entertainment during the dinner and for dancing after dinner.

The Kingston Chapter No. 2039 of AARP holds regular monthly meetings each third Thursday in the month at the George Washington School at 7:30 p.m. The next meeting will be October 16. All persons 55 years of age and older are invited to become members.

GARON (L), SOPHIA CORNELSKES, MAXWELL, LILLIAN MARTIN (Freeman photos)

Mrs. Eve Smith, PACT Speaker

PACT (Parents and Children Together) will welcome Mrs. Eve Smith, executive director of Spaulding for Children, as speaker for its October 3 meeting to be held at 8 p.m. in the Surrogate Chambers of the Ulster County Office Building. Spaulding is an adoption agency which places children with "special needs."

Mrs. Smith and her husband Dave have five children, two of whom are adopted. Mrs. Smith has been instrumental in developing and guiding parent groups, and is past director of New York City Council on Adoptable Children. She will discuss her very special family and give an overview of adoption today, stressing the needs of the "waiting child," the parent who can meet these needs, and the training they should receive to be successful parents.

Mrs. Arlene Gertner, adoption supervisor for Ulster County Department of Social Services, and representatives of local private agencies will participate and be available to answer questions.

The Adoption Unit of the Ulster County Department of Social Services is co-sponsoring this special meeting with PACT.

The meeting is open to the public.

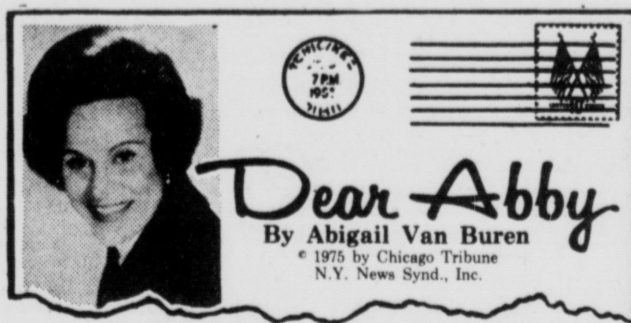

Zoom-lens Photo To Expose Planter's Indiscretion

DEAR ABBY: Re: the infuriating letter from SEEN IT ALL may I inquire whether SHE chooses her work clothing to please her neighbors? Why does she expect the pansy planter to kowtow to her prudery? If "Pansy Planter" wished to plant her garden in the nude, why should it affect your priggish letterwriter and her apparently humorless family? Let them erect a wall around their patio if they can't stand the view.

"LIVE AND LET LIVE" DEAR LIVE: For another view, please read on:

DEAR ABBY: A reader signed SEEN IT ALL complained about a 68-year-old neighbor lady who displayed her uncovered rear end to the entire neighborhood while planting pansies.

J. Berinato's
"Candlelight Room"

—distinctive dining—177 Greenkill Ave.

Your reply was too mild. I would have told the offended neighbor to take a good, clear color photo of the pansy planter using a zoom lens, have it enlarged, and send it to her with the following note: "A guest took this while HE was visiting us."

WICHITA, KANSAS
DEAR WICH: You topped me. That should be the end of it.

DEAR ABBY: I am unmarried and my father is a widower. (We share a house.) I find it most irritating after cooking a hot dinner to have to compete with a newspaper every time I put a hot plate of food in front of my father.

He always has a newspaper propped up against his water glass because he likes to eat his dinner and read at the same time.

I think this is very inconsiderate! After all, I would like a little company while I am having my dinner, but this doesn't seem to occur to him. This has been going on for years, and I am very annoyed at this point.

My father is 80. I'll bet you are going to tell me that nothing can be done to change him at his age, but age is no excuse for rudeness.

WHAT TO DO?

DEAR WHAT: I don't know how many other pleasures your father has at age 80, but I'll wager they are few. It would be easier for you to adjust to his "habit" than for him to change it. If you haven't mentioned your irritation, do so. He just might be more flexible than you are.

On hand for the session were Mrs. Naoum Dinger, (L), Mrs. Robert Cline, Mrs. Paul Modjeska and Mrs. Richard Shepard. The October 4 event will be held from 10 in the morning until 5 in the afternoon with proceeds benefiting the Academy. The rain date is October 5.

Sawyer Homemakers Welcome New Members; Committees Named

The September meeting of the Sawyer Homemakers was held recently at the home of Shirley Cyr. Three new members—Norma Stolte, Patsy Dembroeder, and Carol Hajek—were welcomed into the club. Sylvia Varrell, chairperson, conducted the business meeting.

Various programs for the coming year were discussed and committee appointments were made. On Sept. 24 the first of a new series of "Lunch and Learn" programs was held at the Home Extension office in Kingston. The subject was "Houseplants from pits and seeds."

The Sawyer Homemakers voted to exhibit many forms of needlework for the Christmas Open House to be held at the Kingston Armory Oct. 22. Members appointed to arrange the exhibit include Lorraine Wagner, Wanda Smith, Gwen McCann, and Mildred Montano.

A letter from the Saugerties Society of Little Gardens was read asking members to participate in the Flower Show being held in conjunction with the Chrysanthemum Festival at Seamon Park. A workshop for this project will be held at the home of Pat LaSusa Oct. 2.

The October meeting will be held at the home of Mildred Montano, and will feature two speakers for the evening. Nancy Carlisle will give a demonstration and talk on crafts for Christmas. Mrs. Carlisle is co-owner of The Buttonhole fabric shop in Saugerties. Also, a representative of the League of Women Voters will speak on the Equal Right Amendment, with a question and answer period following.

At the close of the business meeting, Kathy Tunstall showed a set of slides which had been compiled by the Junior League of Kingston. The subject was the historic Hudson Valley during the Revolution. Refreshments were served by Winnie Welton and Gwen McCann.

Mum Festival

Members of the 10th annual Saugerties Chrysanthemum Festival steering committee take time out from their busy chores to admire this year's descriptive brochure giving all the details of the October spectacular. They include Mrs. Joseph LaSusa (L), Mrs. Richard Cyr, general chairperson of the Festival and Mrs. Richard Krommenhoek. This year's Mum Festival will actually get underway on Saturday, Sept. 27, during the Mum Bowl game at Saugerties High School and the crowning of the 1975 "Mum" Queen. The official opening ceremony of the Festival at Seamon Park in Saugerties is set for Sunday, Oct. 5. Another full program of events will follow on Sunday, Oct. 12, also at Seamon Park. Paltz Theatre Arts for Fall Announced

The Department of Theatre Arts at the State University College at New Paltz announces its fall season.

One Flew Over The Cuckoo's Nest, from the novel by Ken Kesey, will be performed on October 8, 9, 10, 11, and 12.

Gypsy, the award-winning musical fable about the life and times of Gypsy Rose Lee, is scheduled for November 14-19, and 20-23, and will be staged in McKenna Theatre.

"Cuckoo," the first production this fall will be presented in Parker Theatre. Parker has recently undergone major renovation, providing theatre goers a chance to see modern staging at its best. The theatre emphasizes an arena stage and a professional range of lighting equipment.

professional range of lighting equipment.

One Flew Over The Cuckoo's Nest is a play set in a mental institution located somewhere in the southwestern United States. The institution is ruled autocratically by Nurse Ratched. Most of the patients are in the institution voluntarily and can be released whenever they want to leave. Into this group of men comes Randle Patrick McMurphy, the archetypal "free spirit." He good-humoredly takes on the men's challenge to get the best of the Big Nurse in order to win a bit, but, as the play progresses, the battle between them grows to such an intensity that it literally becomes a life-and-death struggle.

Maria Alba Company to Perform

The Maria Alba Dance Company will appear at State University College at New Paltz Saturday, Sept. 27, with a performance at 8:30 p.m. The company consists of six dancers, a guitarist, a vocalist and guest artists. They concentrate on Flamenco dancing and other traditional theatrical formats. Maria Alba, described as a "beautiful, slim and ageless dancer," cultivates an air of fire and intensity in her presentation. Saturday's performance will be held at the McKenna Theatre and tickets may be purchased at the Student Union Information booth.

Legal Secretaries Group Hear Frank McDonald on Retirement

The Ulster County Legal Secretaries recently held their regular monthly meeting at the Ukrainian Estates in Kerhonkson. The speaker was Frank McDonald, whose timely and interesting topic was Individual Retirement Accounts — the Tax-Sheltered Retirement Plan for Individuals Not Covered by a Company Pension. There was a question and answer session after McDonald gave his presentation.

Katherine McFarland was installed as a new member and there were several guests attending.

Members are reminded of the Day in Court Program to be held at the Ulster County Office Building Wednesday, Oct. 8. Those members wishing to participate should contact Arlene Sammons, Chairperson.

The New York State Association of Legal Secretaries is holding its quarterly meeting at the Dutch Inn, Ronkonkoma. The president and the newly appointed deputy governor are planning to attend this state meeting. President Michelle Schwerdtfeger installed Beatrice Zebree and Arlene Sammons to fill the unexpired terms of the vice-president and corresponding secretary.

Members are reminded of the Cooperative Extension Classes which began Wednesday, Sept. 24, at the Ulster County Extension Service on John Street; time is noon to 1 p.m. Classes will continue on the last Wednesday of the month, for the next few months.

Window Display of Paintings

Heritage Savings Bank at 273 Wall Street, Kingston, is featuring a window display of paintings by Marion Cornet Chase. Mrs. Chase, who resides in Ashokan, has displayed her paintings in various national and regional shows and has been the recipient of many awards. These paintings will be on exhibit until October 1. Shown here with Mrs. Chase is Joseph F. Brady, bank president. (Freeman photo)

Flea Market Sunday

The Delaware and Hudson Canal Historical Society will hold a Flea Market Sunday, Sept. 28, at Grady Park in High Falls with proceeds going for the new museum of the society.

Sunday's event will get underway at 10 in the morning and will continue throughout the day. Grady Park in High Falls is located off Route 213.

Announcement has been made that the society on Sept. 17 signed a contract committing the group to the purchase of the Lyman White property on Mohonk Road in High Falls for use as the museum.

The Sept. 28 Flea Market activity is one of the events planned by the society to raise funds for the initial payment on this property.

New Large Trade Surplus

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's balance of trade swelled to a $1.04 billion surplus in August because food exports grew faster than oil imports, the Commerce Department said today.

The August surplus was the fourth highest on record and the seventh straight month the United States sold more goods abroad than it bought.

The department said the United States shipped $8.99 billion in food, machinery, chemicals and other goods to foreign countries last month while importing $7.96 billion in oil, raw materials, cars and other goods.

The balance of trade surplus strengthens the dollar in foreign exchange markets and helps reduce domestic inflation. Trade deficits contributed to double digit inflation in 1973-74.

The trade surplus for the year is $7.44 billion compared with a $1.5 billion surplus for the same period in 1974, Commerce said.

Commerce said food exports in August rose 7 percent from July. Total farm exports were valued at $1.269 billion, an increase of $83 million.

Gains were centered in soybeans, up $47 million, corn $42 million, tobacco $30 million, cotton $29 million, rice $20 million and wheat $14 million.

Commerce said oil imports rose 5 percent from July to $2.16 billion. Petroleum imports of 189 million barrels were the highest since April, Commerce said.

Dog Demonstration

A demonstration of dog training is being given at Captain Haggerty's School for Dogs in Walkkill on Saturday at 1 p.m. The demonstration will include obedience training including such advanced work as scent discrimination and obstacle course work. There will be a large number of different breeds of dogs going through their paces.

Results Of Poll

TOWN OF ULSTER
A public opinion poll distributed by the Town of Ulster Democratic Committee has indicated that town residents feel the Republican controlled town board is spending too much money, according to Democratic chairman Kenneth Dargis.

Dargis pointed out that the poll questions dealing with monetary matters were answered in a way which indicates that town residents feel that local government spending should be trimmed.

In particular, 91 percent of those who responded to the questionnaire said that large tax money issues should be decided by a public vote; 57 percent said that the town's highway budget is too high and 91 percent said the town should not have built the new town hall building after residents voted against it.

In other items covered by the questionnaire, 85 percent of those polled said that they felt zoning would protect the homeowner; 61 percent favored a full-time police force; 56 percent said refuse collection should be a town-run service; 47 percent said they were not happy about the decision to replace the two town justices with two additional town councilmen and 75 percent said that town ordinances are not being properly enforced.

Camallonga, Elliott Cases Are Dismissed By Ulster Grand Jury

By Matt Spireng

KINGSTON
In a report that included five indictments, the Ulster County grand jury Thursday dismissed cases involving former Ulster County Highway Superintendent Jose Camallonga Jr. and former Town of Ulster Highway Superintendent Edgar P. Elliott, finding no cause for criminal charges being lodged against either man.

The report dismisses allegations of official misconduct and third degree perjury in the Ulster County Highway Department case and allegations of official misconduct and third degree grand larceny which were investigated in the Elliott case.

District Attorney Francis J. Vogt, who had initially investigated allegations against Camallonga and had come to the same conclusion as the grand jury—that there was no indication of criminal conduct—but then in August began presenting the case after receiving "additional information," explained Thursday after the handing up of the report why he decided to present the case to the grand jury.

Vogt said that subsequent to his preliminary investigation he found two instances where Camallonga "was less than candid with me on occasions that I interviewed him in the preliminary investigation and this led me to believe that the best thing to do was to submit the entire matter to the grand jury."

The district attorney said a state police BCI investigator was assigned to the case, First Assistant D.A. Michael Kavanagh presented the case to the grand jury, and "every allegation brought to our attention was thoroughly explored and every bit of evidence we had was placed before the grand jury."

"The results of the grand jury investigation are substantially the same as those that I found in the preliminary investigation," Vogt continued, "and my conclusions remain the same. While Mr. Camallonga may have been imprudent and in some instances used bad judgment, there is no evidence that warrants criminal action."

Vogt said the perjury charge being investigated was in connection with statements made to him "which turned out to be of little or no significance."

A bi-partisan committee of the Ulster County Legislature is currently probing the Camallonga case.

Vogt said the allegations of misconduct in the Elliott case were "several years old, and for reasons which I cannot fathom were not presented to this office until this year."

Elliott resigned his post in June after the grand jury investigation began, citing increased demands on his time from personal business. Camallonga cited "malicious intentions and political motives" against him as the reason for his resignation in August.

Indictments handed up by the grand jury included those against:

• Thomas Gillespie, 19, of Gardiner, for rape and sodomy in the first degree and second degree assault in connection with a July sexual assault and stabbing of a young Middletown woman in Wallkill.

• James Kateridge, 32, of Highland, for first degree sodomy in connection with an Aug. 1 incident in New Paltz.

• Oscar Serrano, 23, of Plattekill, for third degree burglary and second degree criminal possession of stolen property in connection with a July gun store burglary in Plattekill.

• Charles Eyer, 18, of Saugerties, for two counts of third degree burglary in connection with two Saugerties break-ins.

• Barbara Garfinkle (age and address not available), doing business as Orchard Hill Estates, for violation of the General Obligations Law.

The grand jury dismissed a charge of first degree rape against James Thomas Campbell, 26, of 268 Washington Avenue, Kingston. Campbell had been arrested in June on the complaint of an Ellenville woman.

AREA NEWS TODAY

Saugerties Board to Stand Firm

By Carl Graham

SAUGERTIES

The Saugerties Board of Education intends to stand firm on a 12.9 percent salary increase offer to the district's teachers.

Robert Francello, the board president, said it several times during an informational meeting in the high school auditorium Thursday night to inform the public on the current status of negotiations that have been going on with the Saugerties Teachers' Association (STA) since January. Teachers have been working without a contract since the old three-year pact expired June 30.

"This board will not capitulate to unreasonable demands for money," Francello said. "We simply don't have any more money and will not put any more money in the package."

He opened the meeting by reviewing negotiations, saying that tentative agreement was reached on Sept. 5 on 23 items under negotiation, with a fair dismissal procedure for probationary teachers and the salary issue still to be resolved.

At the Sept. 5 session, the last held between the two sides, the board raised its previous 8.5 percent salary offer to 12.9 percent for a one-year contract, which Francello said exceeded the recommendations of state-appointed fact finder Robert Helfrich.

"We made it clear we had no more money to offer," Francello said. "I thought a settlement would be reached quickly. I didn't think anyone in his right mind would refuse the offer."

The board set aside $368,000 of additional state aid received by the district for teacher salary increases and earmarked another $100,000 to reduce the tax rate (about $7.50 per thousand), Francello said, noting that it would give a minimum raise of $1,204 and a median raise of $1,607 to the district's 240 teachers.

Other points brought out by Francello:

• The district's starting bachelor degree salary of $8,600 is the lowest in the county, but the median $12,500 salary is roughly in the middle, and the district is 10th of the 40 districts in the Mid-Hudson area at the top end of the scale.

• The board will support the 12.9 percent increase but will not approve a contract for more than one year.

• If there is no increase in state aid next year the district faces a "substantial" increase in the tax rate.

• Increases granted to non-professional staff members this year ranged from five to 10 percent.

• "If this continues to drag on we will lose the (budget) support that has been built up in the community."

Numerous speakers in the audience of 1,000 were divided between those supporting and those opposing the STA position. Both sides drew frequent applause from the audience that contained a large turnout of teachers.

"I think the board has been more than generous to offer 12.9 percent—most of us would be happy with half of that," one woman said.

"If you compare average salaries in the county for people with masters' degrees, I don't think our teachers would turn out so good," another said.

"My property taxes have increased sharply the past few years," one man said. "Where will the money come from if we continue to give these large increases each year?"

Asked after the meeting what the board's response would be if teachers voted to strike, Francello said the district will continue to operate. "The majority of teachers will not support a strike," he predicted. "Only a few extremists are talking of a strike."

Investigation Ends With Arrests

By Matt Spireng

ELLENVILLE

An intensive investigation which began more than a month ago following a $2,000 armed robbery at the Ellenville McDonald's restaurant ended early today with the arrest of three men by Ellenville Village Police.

Charged with second degree robbery in connection with the Aug. 4 armed holdup were Randolph Fanueli, 21, of 44 Canal Street; Daniel Smith, 22, of Spring Street; and Anthony Ware, 22, of Spring Street, all Ellenville residents. Police said the three were picked up in separate locations in Ellenville at about 3 a.m. today.

Authorities had been seeking three men since the early morning hours of Aug. 4 after they entered the McDonald's restaurant, held seven workers who were cleaning up at bay with a shotgun, and fled on foot with the day's receipts, some $2,000 in cash.

The investigation of the robbery by the trio, all of whom wore stocking masks at the time of the holdup, was directed by Police Chief George A. Sheeley and Lt. John J. Phillips.

Sheeley said today that the money taken in the robbery has not been recovered. He declined to explain what led police to the three who were arrested.

The three alleged robbers were taken before Village Justice Ronald Elias for arraignment and were ordered held in the Ulster County Jail in lieu of $25,000 cash bail each pending further court action.

Police Beat

Meanwhile, in other area police matters:

A young Kingston man, reportedly recently paroled from state prison, was arrested Thursday in Woodstock on a warrant charging him with parole violation and for third degree criminal possession of a controlled substance after he was allegedly found to be carrying a quantity of marijuana when searched.

BCI Investigator Carl Van Wagenen and Spotted Officer Robert Gillen spotted Thomas Stisi, 29, reportedly of 83 Franklin Street, Kingston, enter a Woodstock pizzeria at about 5 p.m. Thursday and arrested him at the pizzeria on the parole violation warrant.

Authorities said four one-ounce bags of marijuana were allegedly found on Stisi during a subsequent search, leading to the felony drug charge.

Following arraignment, Stisi was jailed in lieu of $5,000 bail.

Highland State Police are investigating a stabbing which occurred early today outside the Circle Inn in Highland.

Police said Jerry Gardner, 23, of South Street, Highland, was stabbed by a black male following an argument in the parking lot of the restaurant.

Gardner was taken to Sasser Hospital in Poughkeepsie. No report on his condition was immediately available.

The stabbing occurred at about 4:30 a.m., according to authorities.

A Freihofer's Bakery panel truck driver was admitted to Kingston Hospital early today after sustaining head injuries in a crash in the Town of Saugerties.

Saugerties Town Police said Irving MacDowell Jr., 31, of Hyde Park, was driving east on Route 212 at about 6:15 p.m. when the truck skidded on the wet pavement on a curve and slammed into a utility pole, snapping the pole in half.

MacDowell was rushed from the scene by Saugerties Ambulance and was listed in satisfactory condition at Kingston Hospital following admittance there.

No tickets were issued.

Illegal Aliens the Topic

discuss the problem of illegal aliens with federal officials. The 25th District Republican has introduced legislation that would reduce the influx of illegal aliens.

GOP Tabs Staley, Miner

ALBANY

Ellis J. Staley Jr., who lost a bid for reelection to the State Supreme Court in 1974, and Roger J. Miner, in his third term as Columbia County District Attorney, won the Republican nominations Thursday for the two 14-year terms for Supreme Court Justice from the Third Judicial District.

On Wednesday, third district Democrats selected Milton Levine of Monticello and Daniel H. Prior Jr. of Albany as their candidates for positions on the state's second highest court. With the major party nominations completed, Ulster County finds itself shut out in the race for a Supreme Court judgeship. Ulster County has one sitting justice in John L. Larkin of Kingston; one of the two seats that will be filled in November however had been occupied by the late Justice Louis G. Bruhn of Kingston.

Third district Liberals and Conservatives will caucus on Saturday, but there has been no indication whether they will nominate their own candidates, or endorse one of the Republican or Democratic nominees.

Staley had served one full term on the State Supreme Court when he was defeated for reelection in 1974 by Democrat William Murray. But he was later appointed to the bench on an interim basis by former Gov. Malcolm Wilson when Justice Bruhn died late last year. At the time, an Ulster County Republican delegation had urged Gov. Wilson to appoint Surrogate Judge Arthur A. Davis to fill the vacancy—and retain the court seat for Ulster County.

At present, Columbia County is the only county in the Third Judicial District that does not have a sitting justice. Miner was first elected Columbia County District Attorney in 1967, and had previously served as assistant district attorney and corporation counsel for the City of Hudson.

Levine, the Democratic choice for one of the two available judgeships, was appointed by Gov. Hugh Carey several weeks ago to fill the vacancy created when Supreme Court Justice Lawrence H. Cooke of Monticello was elected to the State Court of Appeals.

There had been indications that the Democrats and Republicans would cross-endorse Levine and Staley, assuring each election to the court and preventing either party from getting shut out at the polls in November. That possibility never materialized.

The Ulster County delegation, which was represented at the conference in Albany by Richard Griggs, Charles Keyser and William Ryan, did not place any of its own candidates in nomination. There had been reports that former Assemblyman H. Clark Bell of Woodstock had expressed interest in a judgeship, but a local delegate said today that, with the nomination of Staley and Miner a foregone conclusion even before the caucus, the local delegation saw no reason to nominate an Ulster candidate.

Heavy Voter Turnout Called For

KINGSTON

City School Board Vice President Fred Hofbauer has called for a heavy turnout of voters at next Wednesday's special election in order to defeat candidates who would "waste taxpayers' money and continually increase the school taxes of the district."

Hofbauer spoke at a press conference at the Gov. Clinton Hotel on Thursday where he was joined by fellow board member Richard Skala. The other two members of what has come to be known as the "anti-high school quartet," Josephine McKean and Ronald Meyer, were not in attendance.

"Some board members think that only spending large amounts of money is the way to run the school district," Hofbauer asserted.

He noted that the taxpayers directly felt the effect of this year's record budget through their tax bills delivered in the past two weeks. "Almost everyone in the district received a higher bill," Hofbauer said. "This did not need to happen. The budget which I voted against in June is inflated. It is approximately 10 percent higher than the needs of the district."

Hofbauer further stated that the district was $3 million above its constitutional spending limit, legal only because the state allows the district to exclude such items as Social Security, retirement and other benefits from computing the allowable limits.

Hofbauer also addressed himself to the subject of a "split board," contending the divisions were caused not by the new members elected last May but by the older members who Hofbauer charges refuse to accept new members on an equal footing.

"They resist change, different opinions, new ideas and claim it takes years for new board members to understand the workings of the board," Hofbauer said. "Block voting has been the working of the old board members and the minutes show it."

Hofbauer also touched on a number of issues during a wide-ranging hour with the press including the continuance of "executive sessions," which he says he has opposed but to no avail.

He says the high school is still very much an issue since the district still owns 38 acres of land in Lake Katrine and has yet to dismiss the architect that drew up the plans. "The new high school is still and will remain an issue until the conditions at the high school are resolved."

Skala agreed with Hofbauer that incumbents on the school board had been uncooperative. "We've been blocked almost every step of the way when it comes to new ideas," he said.

"All they did was jump over me," Hofbauer complained. "They try to force their mind into yours."

Hofbauer characterized the incumbents as "a country club clique interrupted by the new members who have no ties to their social groups."

"They wanted to go out in a blaze of glory with a brass plaque on a new building and all that," said Hofbauer.

Skala was critical of administration in the school and used the alleged deterioration of the high school and other buildings as an example. He called it a "deliberate attempt to allow buildings to deteriorate" in order to justify a new high school. "It was a pure case of administrative bungling," Skala said. "Who is watching the shop?"

Hofbauer also endorsed one of the candidates—Michael Bohan of Fourth Avenue—for election, suggesting that his "frank and open answers show that he will be an asset to the school board."

Hofbauer said that Bohan, 28, did not agree with all of Hofbauer's programs. "He feels M/JM should be kept as a junior high school (rather than being converted into a wing for the high school) as Hofbauer advocated) which shows he has new ideas of his own."

Hofbauer, in conclusion, reiterated the need for a heavy turnout for the special election.

Naturalization Set at UCCC

KINGSTON

The next naturalization term of Supreme Court in Ulster County will be held at Ulster County Community College, according to announcement made today by County Clerk Albert Spada.

Naturalization terms have traditionally been held at Ulster County Court House for many years.

The request by Spada to the Third Judicial Department, to have the proceedings moved to the college was made because of the increasing numbers of naturalized persons and those wishing to witness and take part in the ceremonies.

In recent years the Ulster County Court House facility has proven too limited in size to accommodate the many persons who attend the naturalization term. In many instances there has been standing room only with an overflow crowd unable to attend.

The Quimby Auditorium at the Stone Ridge campus will now be used. Spada cited its size and acoustical qualities in choosing it as the site for future proceedings.

Spada sought the change by applying to the Appellate Division of Supreme Court. Presiding Justice J. Clarence Herlihy signed the order.

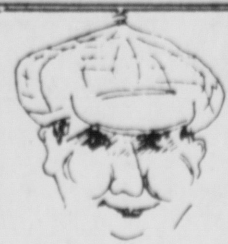

The next naturalization term to be held at UCCC will take place Oct. 23 at 11 a.m.

Spada anticipates that some students at the college will also be interested in witnessing the moving ceremony.

Jewish Harvest Festival

Rabbi Basil Herring of Congregation Agudas Achim makes blessing for Lulav and Etrog (palm branch and citroen fruit) as part of the festival of Succos. Holding the symbols of the harvest holiday are Risa Dean and Michael Barnovitz. The Feast of Tabernacles commemorates the 40-year wandering of the Israelites on the way to the Promised Land and expresses Thanksgiving for the fall harvest. (Freeman photo)

Dr. King Sr. Area Speaker

POUGHKEEPSIE
The Rev. Martin Luther King, Sr., father of late civil rights leader the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., will be the guest speaker at a youth award dinner to be held Sunday, Oct. 12, at 5 p.m. at the Hellenic Center in Poughkeepsie.

The Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Youth Award Dinner, sponsored by the Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Commemorative Committee of Dutchess County, is being held to recognize and honor young men and women who have helped develop meaningful programs honoring the late Rev. Dr. King and have, themselves, exemplified the principles for which he stood.

Now 75-years-old, Rev. King, Sr. retired from his 44-year ministry on July 25 of this year at the Ebenezer Baptist Church in Atlanta, Ga., where his son had served as co-pastor prior to his assassination. Rev. King, Sr. also lost his wife to a bullet—she was shot to death as she played the organ in his church—and his only other son was drowned.

This will be Rev. King's first appearance in New York State since his son's death.

Mt. Marion Open House

MT. MARION
It's potato chips, pretzels and beverages when the Mt. Marion Fire Department holds its open house Sunday, Sept. 28.

Between munching and quenching you can view the new firehouse, the new fire engine, and an assortment of fire fighting equipment on display.

A fund raising drive has been successful and firemen, anxious to show their appreciation, invite the public between the hours of 1-4 p.m.

Area fire fighters will be welcomed for a closer inspection of the new fire truck between 5 p.m. and dark. The half side of beef will be awarded and the winner of the fire truck weight-guessing contest will be announced at 4 p.m., with guesses accepted until 2:30 p.m. Festivities will be held, rain or shine, at the new firehouse, "the tallest building in Mt. Marion."

Dave Griffin, publicity chairman, reports that firemen are busy putting final touches on floors, kitchen, and the rest rooms.

A Mysterious Crash Of 4 Italian Planes

ROME (UPI)—Four Italian F104 Starfighter jets mysteriously crashed Thursday on flights from an American air base in West Germany to Italy, killing all four pilots, an Italian Defense Ministry spokesman said.

"It was a real disaster," the spokesman said. "It is very strange for an entire formation of planes to crash. It had never happened before."

The spokesman said Italian and West German authorities were investigating the possibility of sabotage or an error by the formation leader.

The quadruple crash came shortly after they took off from Bitburg, a U.S. Air Force base in West Germany's Eifel mountains near Luxembourg.

In Bonn, an Italian diplomatic source said the wreckage of one of the planes was found 12 miles south of Spangdahlem, near the Luxembourg border.

U.S. sources in West Germany said the Bitburg control tower lost radio contact with the planes almost immediately after they took off.

By noon, four hours after the planes left Bitburg, the other three in the flight remained unaccounted for, the American spokesman said.

Ali's Wife Heads Home

MANILA (UPI) — With just four days to go before his title bout against Joe Frazier, heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali appears to have run into another fight.

Sources within the Ali camp said a domestic row erupted shortly after the arrival of his wife, Belinda, from the United States early this morning, prompting Belinda to book a seat on the next plane home.

The quarrel apparently stems from the presence in Manila of Chicago beauty Veronica Porsche, who flew in with the champion's entourage two weeks ago and who has been Ali's constant companion since, even during a formal call on President and Mrs. Ferdinand E. Marcos.

Ali, who last week cut off sportswriters' queries about Veronica by saying "I have only one wife, Belinda is my wife," gave little hint of any brewing personal trouble today as he went through his daily training session at a seaside theater.

Airline sources said Belinda had booked a flight back to the U.S. later today but sources in Ali's camp said her departure was not yet certain.

But Belinda did show up at the Manila International Airport, about 12 hours after her arrival, a forlorn and solitary figure, and caught an evening flight bound for Honolulu and San Francisco.

"I'm going home to my family," Belinda said. Asked if she would return to Manila, she said "If I have business here, I will."

As if he had serious business in his mind, Ali cut down on his antics during his mid-morning workout and went about his drills with intensity and even flashes of ferocity.

He slammed the heavy bag for three rounds, hit the speedball another three rounds then, resuming his sparring after a three-day layoff, boxed two rounds with middleweight Gene Wells and four rounds with Rodney Bobick.

Towards the end of his sparring with Bobick, Ali suddenly turned fierce and chased his sparring partner around the ring with vicious left hooks and right crosses to a point that spectators thought he would flatten his opponent.

Asked later what was on his mind at the time, Ali replied "the fight is on my mind."

Ali was also asked about a published statement by his mother that after becoming heavyweight champion of the world, Ali's next goal should be the presidency of the United States. He answered curtly "She's just talking."

The only light moments during the workout came when one of Joe Frazier's group, Willie "The Worm" Monroe, made his usual appearance and taunted Ali that Frazier will come out "Smokin'" on fight day Oct. 1 (Sept. 30 in the U.S.).

Monroe played on his tape recorder Frazier's song "First Round Knockout" and Ali responded by also playing a song based on his ring slogan "float like a butterfly sting like a bee."

Frazier took today off, as he had previously announced, and Ali said the challenger was resting because he had overtrained and was at a loss on his pre-fight timetable.

NFL Games Will Be Played . . .

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A league offer to bring peace to the pro football labor front was unquestionably repudiated by an emphatic player vote Thursday but the weekend schedule of NFL competition for fans seemed assured of no disruption.

A no-strike pledge by the NFL Players Association was being honored by the teams that voted to reject the latest contract proposed by the owners by a margin running around five to one. But the teams that turned down the offer indicated they would play their second week of regular season games Sunday and Monday.

The only break in the solid front of teams rejecting the latest owner package came in Cincinnati where the Bengals voted 26-12 with two abstentions to accept the contract offered by the NFL Management Council earlier in the week at Chicago.

The teams turning thumbs down were the Houston Oilers, Buffalo Bills, Washington Redskins, Miami Dolphins, Oakland Raiders, Cleveland Browns, Philadelphia Eagles, Detroit Lions, Chicago Bears, the New England Patriots, the Green Bay Packers and the St. Louis Cardinals.

Their votes ranged from unanimous rejection votes by the Oilers, Redskins, Raiders, Bears and Patriots to the narrower 24-18 turnout by the Eagles and the acceptance by the Bengals.

The one-sided rejection was expected to set in motion new moves by chief federal mediator William J. Usery, Jr., to summon both sides back to the bargaining table this weekend in the hope of hammering out an agreement. Under an interim agreement that ended a five-team walkout last week, the players are free to threaten another strike next Thursday if wished.

However, the Dolphins, after balloting 30-5 against the management offer, immediately voted unanimously against any strike action and player representative Dick Anderson said: "We don't feel it's any good and the only people it hurts are the fans and those are the people we don't want to hurt."

Player representative Randy Vataha, who became a major figure in leading the New England Patriots out on strike last week, indicated the players union would be prepared with a counter-offer to the owners in an effort to keep negotiations going once the formal talks were announced by NFLPA Executive Director Ed Garvey.

Garvey and union president Kermit Alexander refrained from any comment until the final tabulation were received at NFLPA headquarters in Washington.

Cardinals, who feature two of the most dangerous players in the game in running back Terry Metcalf and wide receiver Mel Grey. Metcalf ran for 99 yards, including a 39-yard touchdown burst, and caught four passes for 37 more yards. Grey had two key receptions in the drive that set up the winning field goal.

In other games Sunday matching opening day winners, Buffalo is at Pittsburgh, the New York Giants at Washington and Oakland at Baltimore. Elsewhere, Miami is at New England, Minnesota at Cleveland, Detroit at Atlanta, Cincinnati at New Orleans, San Diego at Houston, the New York Jets at Kansas City and Philadelphia at Chicago. Green Bay is at Denver Monday night.

O.J. Simpson ran for 173 yards in Buffalo's win over the Jets and would have broken his 250-yard single game mark if two long runs weren't called back. He'll be hard-pressed to duplicate that effort against the Super Bowl champion Steelers, probably the best defensive club in the league. Pittsburgh opened with a 37-0 rout of San Diego.

The Giants stumbled to a 23-14 win over Philadelphia and need to turn in a better performance if they hope to upend Washington. The Redskins blasted New Orleans 41-3 in their opener as Bill Kilmer threw four touchdown passes.

Oakland lived up to its reputation as a top Super Bowl contender with a 31-21 Monday night victory over Miami. The Raiders are big favorites over Baltimore, which crushed Chicago 35-7 in a duel of rebuilding clubs on opening day.

Royals, the early part of the game wasn't so easy. Lyman Bostock went 3-for-4 for the Twins, drove home one run and scored two others. Craig Kusick also had a 425-foot solo homer for Minnesota.

As for the Orioles, their pennant dreams may have been dampened by all the rain—at least if you listen to Manager Earl Weaver or centerfielder Paul Blair.

"The rainouts have benefited Boston," said Weaver. "They missed facing Catfish Hunter and Rudy May of the Yankees—the third and seventh best pitchers in the league according to the earned run averages."

Added Blair: "I really don't like our chances. Boston's not losing for us. We're trying to keep pressure on them and win every game but if they keep winning, we're going to run out of chances."

In the only other American League game played Thursday, Chicago punted Oakland 8-2. San Diego put away San Francisco 8-6 in the only National League game scheduled.

White Sox 8, A's 2

Oakland, having clinched its division the night before, threw a makeshift lineup of reserves and fresh-faced recent minor leaguers at Chicago and Wilbur Wood took advantage. Wood (16-20) spaced five hits and yielded no earned runs to stave off his 21st defeat. Jerry Hairston drove home two White Sox runs and was 3-for-5.

Padres 8, Giants 6

Thirty-seven year old Willie McCovey stroked his 22nd and 23rd homers to drive home three runs in San Diego's victory over San Francisco. McCovey had a solo homer in the fourth and a two-run shot in the sixth, giving him 458 for his long career. Dave Winfield also hit his 15th for San Diego in the eighth.

Nuggets, Nets Eye NBA

ABA Court Fight Likely

DENVER (UPI) — Denver Nuggets President Carl Scheer says his team will have to legally overturn the American Basketball Association bylaws to be able to jump to the rival National Basketball Association without paying too high a price.

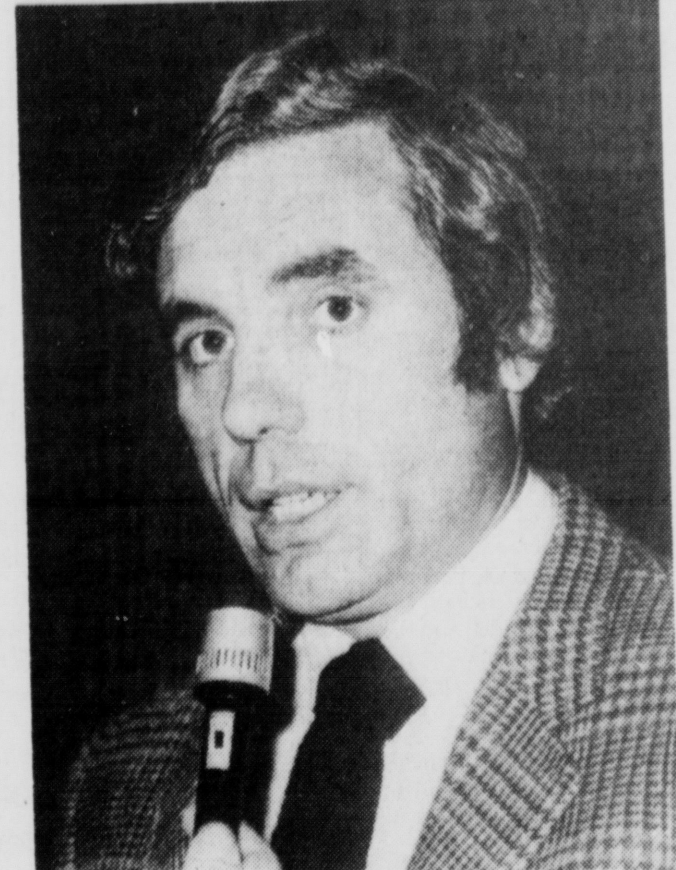

"At every level we are going to take each step separately and make sure we have a firm hold before moving on," said Scheer.

The first step was taken Thursday with the formal application of the Nuggets and the New York Nets for membership in the NBA. The next step is to determine the legality of the ABA bylaws.

ABA Commissioner Dave DeBusschere said the teams would be stripped of their holdings, including their players, arena leases and club franchises, if they jumped to the NBA.

"No franchise may withdraw from our league without first assigning all basketball related property to the league and without obtaining the consent of other trustees," said DeBusschere, who stepped down as general manager of the Nets last year to become head of the ABA.

Scheer said the next step in the effort to jump leagues would be to test the legality of the ABA bylaws DeBusschere cited.

DAVE DEBUSSCHERE

"In any kind of legal interpretation there are always reasons to believe there are two sides," said Scheer. "The next move for us is to get a judge's ruling on the bylaws. If the bylaws are binding the decision is not too hard to make. We will stay in the ABA."

NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien said the older league would give serious consideration to the applications for admission for the 1976-77 season but would not go into detail on the request. "We intend to give these applications the serious consideration they deserve," said O'Brien. "And we will proceed expeditiously with full cognizance of the ramifications involved, including applicable court orders."

The announcement was partially designed in hopes of forcing U.S. District Judge Robert Carter of New York to rule on suits challenging a merger between the ABA and NBA. Carter has been considering a challenge to the merger since 1970 but issued no final ruling.

"Personally I would rather see the leagues merge," said Scheer. "If I thought that was possible under current circumstances I don't think we would have taken this step."

The ABA has been hurt by its failure to lure a national television contract, while both leagues have been hurt by bidding wars for talent.

If a merger should fail and Denver and New York join the NBA, it would give the older league the two premier players it is currently missing in New York's Julius Erving and Denver's David Thompson. It also would leave the ABA without a franchise in the nation's top three television markets as Chicago and Los Angeles do not have teams in the 8-year-old league.

Barber Still Has the Touch

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — "I'm not going to lie to anybody about my age," said Miller Barber. "I'm 44. I'm not like Sam Snead. I don't say I'm 61 when I'm 63."

"I wish I was 28. I've got a toupee and when I wear it I look 28."

In his 17th tour season, Barber may be getting along in years but he can still play golf.

A broiling sun proved to his liking Thursday when he charged into the lead in the $135,000 Sahara Invitational Golf Tournament with an eight-under par 63, completing the first round one shot ahead of veteran Bob Wynn.

Although he has won $75,070 in 1975, the man referred to as "Mr. X" has had his share of physical problems this year.

"I guess I'm getting old," he said. "I had to withdraw from the PGA because of a groin inflammation and I've had back and asthma problems."

"But I haven't considered retiring. I still feel I can play. As long as I feel that way, I'll continue. Besides, all these good, young kids out here kind of motivate me."

Next to Jack Nicklaus, Barber happens to have won more consecutive years — eight — than any other player on the tour. Nicklaus has victories in all 14 of his pro seasons.

"Yes, I'd like to keep up my string," he admitted. "That would be very nice. But time's running out." Counting the Saharas, Barber will have only three more chances. He's entered in the Kaiser International at San Antonio, Tex. next month.

"I like to go out to a show or two when I come to Las Vegas," he offered. "But I stayed pretty calm this week. If you want to win, you have to go to bed early."

Wynn is looking for his first victory ever. At 35, he says he has grown impatient at waiting.

"I'll be there one of these days," he declared. "Maybe this week. If I shoot three more 64s I will be. But it won't take that, of course."

While playing in the Northern California Open last week, Wynn fired his putter into a lake in a moment of disgust. He then went out and spent $22 on a new one.

"It wasn't the putter's fault," he said. "But I wasn't putting well and I just didn't want to use it anymore. One of my program partners waded into the water and got it. He's using it now."

A pair of tour rabbits — Tom Evans and Bob Shaw — were tied for third place at 65. Next, at 66, came 1968 U.S. Amateur champion Bruce Fleischer and Marty Fleckman.

. . . Are the Cowboys Really Back?

By UPI

Are the Dallas Cowboys really back? They'll find out Sunday when they entertain the St. Louis Cardinals.

The Cowboys failed to make the playoffs for the first time in eight years last season and there were dire forecasts for 1975. Calvin Hill, Walt Garrison, Bob Lilly, Cornell Green, John Niland, Pat Toomay — some of the top stars of their glory years — were gone and Dallas was considered a long shot at making the playoffs.

But the Cowboys opened up last Sunday with a stunning 18-7 upset of the mighty Los Angeles Rams and this Sunday's matchup against the Cardinals could have a tremendous bearing on the National Conference Eastern Division race.

The Cardinals, whose trademark last season was the miracle finish, started off this year the same way as Jim Bakken's field goal at the final gun provided them with a 23-20 victory over the Atlanta Falcons.

Dallas threw up an awesome defense against the explosive Rams, holding James Harris to only one completion in 10 pass attempts for a mere five yards. The Rams did not score until the final few minutes when the game was well out of reach.

The Cowboys held Los Angeles to only 135 yards total offense and allowed the Rams past midfield only once, in the final touchdown drive engineered by reserve quarterback Ron Jaworski.

Dallas will need a similar effort against the high-powered

Lindy Has Given Up Dreaming

By UPI

For the Baltimore Orioles, the rain-soaked dream of a pennant still lives. Not so, however, for Lindy McDaniel, who has given up that dream after 21 years of trying.

Thursday's rains brought more postponements to the Orioles and the Boston Red Sox, who will now likely be forced to settle their differences in the American League East next week when the season is over for most everyone else. The Orioles, still 3½ games behind the Red Sox with seven to play, were rained out at home with Detroit, while Boston's game with Cleveland was also washed away in the wet wake of Hurricane Eloise.

But in Kansas City, where the Royals seemed as far away from the rains as they were from the American League west pennant, "The Preacher" was calling it a career.

That would be McDaniel, the lay preacher who toiled for six non-pennant winners over a span of 21 years beginning in 1955. McDaniel, obviously, has paid his pennance. He announced his retirement prior to the Royals' 5-2 loss to the Minnesota Twins and then went out in style, retiring the Twins 1-2-3 in the ninth inning.

"I made up my mind to retire about 10 days ago," said the 39-year old McDaniel, who began his career with St. Louis and then drifted to the Chicago Cubs, San Francisco, New York Yankees (post 1964) and the Royals. "After 21 years, I felt I'd lost something — motivation. I quit pitching in tight spots and that took a lot of the challenge out of it."

McDaniel leaves behind him a lifetime record of 141-119. "I was glad I got the opportunity to pitch tonight," he said, "and be able to finish up with such an easy inning."

Mike Perry Returns

STONE RIDGE

Ulster County Community College was expected to announce today the return of Mike Perry as head basketball coach for the 1975-76 season.

Perry returns to the Stone Ridge campus after a two-year's absence on sabbatical and leave to coach the Swedish National Team and in the Swedish league.

In Perry's absence, the Ulster team was coached by Jerry Moss, a former UCCC star who resigned under pressure, and Mike Bernstein of Monticello, who served as a part-time member of the athletic staff.

Bernstein declined to return for the 1975-76 season because the college was unable to make provisions for a full-time job for him.

Under Perry's skillful guidance, Ulster's basketball team earned a national reputation for excellence. In eight seasons, his UCCC teams won 179 and lost 47, while winning several Mid-Hudson Conference titles and two Region XV Championships.

During the 1972-73 season, Perry's squad compiled a brilliant 34-5 record, including a third place finish in the National Junior College Athletic College national championships in Hutchinson, Kansas. The record was wiped out when it was discovered that one of the players on the team was ineligible.

Milton Richman, UPI Sports Editor

MANILA (UPI) — Muhammad Ali can beat Joe Frazier. He's sure of that because he has done it once already. But there's no way he can win against his wife, Belinda. He never has, nor is it likely he ever will.

Ali talks a lot about how he's on some divine mission and how he's not merely a fighter but a superior being. Maybe some people have come to believe that, but they had better also believe that Muhammad Ali is no different than any other husband. His wife, Belinda, is the boss in their marriage, not him.

Before her arrival here this morning, she had heard all about how young, beautiful Veronica Porche of Chicago, supposedly her "friend," was entertained in the company of Ali by President Marcos of the Philippines and his wife, and how the Porche girl was being generally accepted as Ali's "other" wife. She had heard it, and wasn't happy.

The champ kissed Belinda when she saw him for the first time here in his hotel suite.

"We have a lot of things to talk about," she said to him. She didn't go into detail there because of TV camera crew happened to be in the room preparing to film an interview with Ali for the Today show to be seen back in the United States. Ali sensed his wife had something on her mind she wanted to discuss with him more than the panoramic sweep of Manila Bay. The two of them walked into another room of the suite and talked for some time.

Word was relayed out to TV people there would be no film interview, not at this time, anyway, and they packed up their gear and left.

Belinda Ali is fully aware her husband is a public figure. She's a woman first, though and a wife second, and the one thing no wife ever wants is to be embarrassed by another woman. She was upset over being embarrassed.

After she told Ali what she thought of his actions, she picked up the telephone and made a reservation on the next plane back to San Francisco.

"You mean she's not going to see her husband fight Frazier Wednesday (Tuesday night in the U.S.)," one employee of the airline she booked with asked another.

"Not unless she watches on television," said the second employee.

"I don't think she'll do that," said the first fellow. Ali's wife passed up today's workout.

She isn't at all enthralled about the fight. She has seen her husband work on the light bag before. The heavy one, too. Ali tried to pass off the whole episode following his workout. When asked about his wife's arrival, he merely said, "glad to have her here. She always comes to my fights."

He said nothing about her being upset over the Porche girl and nothing about her booking a reservation back home after being here only a few hours.

By design or otherwise after today's workout, Ali talked about how different he is from Frazier, how much more independent he is than him.

"He does anything Eddie Futch tells him," Ali said. "Futch makes the decisions. That's a robot! You don't have anybody else make decisions for a good fighter, tell him how much to run today. You do that yourself if you're a good fighter."

"Frazier took off today. They told him to take off today... they tell him how many rounds to work on the bag... they tell him when to hook... when to jab. Then when he gets in the ring, he ain't that intelligent enough, what's he gonna do?"

One thing Joe Frazier isn't going to do. He isn't going to get into any flap with his wife this close to the fight. He's a lot smarter than that.

Daryle Lamonica Retires

FRESNO, Calif. (UPI) — Daryle Lamonica, a 14-year veteran who played quarterback in three pro leagues, has retired from football.

Lamonica, 35, who starred at Notre Dame before joining Buffalo of the American Football League, returned to his home here after leaving the Southern California Sun of the World Football League last week.

"I don't know what all this is about my being AWOL from the Southern California Sun," Lamonica said. "I told Larry Hatfield last Wednesday that I was finished with football."

Lamonica played most of his pro career with the Oakland Raiders in the NFL but joined the Sun this year after playing out his option with the Raiders last year. He was used mainly as a backup quarterback to Pat Hayden with the Sun.

Lamonica was nicknamed "the Mad Bomber" because he liked to throw long passes.

Hatfield is president of the Sun.

Fall camp for the Portland Trail Blazers opened Thursday and one of new faces on basketball court was that of Greg Lee (42). Lee a free agent, is former teammate and roomie of Blazers' star center Bill Walton (32). Greg was given a chance to show his basketball ability due to recommendation of Bill. (UPI)

Bruins Rout Rangers, 8-3

BOSTON (UPI) — Phil Esposito scored four goals Thursday night as the Boston Bruins rolled over the New York Rangers 8-3 in a National Hockey League exhibition game.

Th win was the first for the Bruins in the exhibition season after two losses and a tie. Esposito scored two goals in the second period when the Bruins put the game away, breaking a 2-2 tie with three goals.

Girl Gridders OK for H.S.

OLYMPIA, Wash. (UPI) — Two teenage girls, backed by the State Supreme Court, have made their point. From now on, young women in Washington state cannot be excluded from high school football teams.

Carol Darrin, 16, and 170 pounds and her 14-year-old sister, 212-pound Dolores, turned out for the Wishkah Valley High School Football team, which was short of players anyway. Their parents, their doctor and their coach approved of using them on the team, but not a state association which regulated high school football.

The American Civil Liberties Union helped the girls fight the association's ruling but lost the case in Superior Court in 1973. Thursday the State Supreme Court overturned the lower court's ruling. But the decision based on the state equal rights amendment will have little effect on the girls. Carol is now in junior college where she has taken up bowling and Dolores, still in high school, no longer wants to take part in football.

Knicks Sign Earl Monroe

NEW YORK (UPI) — Earl Monroe, who played out his option and was rumored to be playing "anywhere but New York" this season, Thursday agreed to terms for a multi-year contract with the Knicks. Around the National Basketball Association, it is no secret the Knicks were trying to pedal off Monroe in exchange for the big man they desperately need to clog up a key pivotal weakness.

In fact, Monroe had actually been traded—for the rights to George McGinnis when he was still with Indiana of the ABA—but the deal fell through.

Monroe's concern was more than just money. He described the contract as "just what I wanted. Security was the most important part."

In his first three seasons with the Knicks after arriving from the Bullets, Monroe put aside his flashy game and conformed to Coach Red Holtzman's team oriented offense.

Wallkill Over Raiders The Hoople Special

By Major Amos B. Hoople
Presses Prophet

Head, friends, we have some strong prognostications for you this week in a schedule dominated by some interesting pick'em clashes.

Your favorite forecaster enters this the third week of his record of nine correct picks, two slightly misjudged for a percentage of 818, harmon, without any further

it's on to his fifth week

WALLKILL 14.

RED HOOK 13.

The wall, which will win this

UCAL race, should be

first to defeat Red Hook, who won last year's title.

Best thing the Raiders are going for in their

to keep mistakes at a minimum. That will keep the ballgame against the Wallkill team.

RONDOT 12.

ELLENVILLE 0.

Rondot's offense is far from powerful, at least so far, but

Gander defense is something else. Opening against

Coimbra and Ellenville is giving UC a chance to get its act together, kaff-kaff!

KINGSTON 24.

The Hoople Upset Special of

Week! Let's also call it the Wallkill Hunch of the Week, huh.

THE OLD BOY HIMSELF

though it was knocked off by

New Palz last week, Jove, this

Redskin aggression is going to give people fits, and they'll show Highland right off the bat, kack-kack-kack.

SAUGERTIES 18.

POUGHKEEPSIE 6.

I'm still scratching my head over Saugerties' loss to Loures as I'm sure folks on the road are as well. Seems to me the Sawyers are a lot better than they've acted. Maybe the home opener will straighten them out.

PINE BUSH 19.

MARLBORO 6.

The Dukes are just the remedy for the Bushmen, who have had the misfortune of playing

Wallkill and Red Hook for starters. Marlboro has met the same pair, but the Dukes, despite a surprising showing against Wallkill, aren't ready yet.

NEW PALTZ 27.

ONTARIO 14.

I look for a wide-open offensive show here, with New

Palz having the edge both in running backs and quarterback. Fans of defensive football will be disappointed by this game, ha-kaff!

The Hoople football festivities get off to a big start tonight as Oklahoma brings its spectacular show to the Orange Bowl against home team

Miami. Rolling in midseason form, the Sooners will romp,

35-14.

Saturday is loaded with prime engagements starting with UCLA's invasion of Colorado to meet Air Force. The Bruins will shoot down the Falcons, 28-12.

The North Carolina Tar

Heels have the unenviable task of hosting the mighty

Ohio State Buckeyes. The

Hoople System gives the nod to Archie Griffin and Company by a 38-14 count.

In one of the great all-time college football rivalries, the

Princeton's Tigers and Rutgers will get together for the 66th time on the Tigers' field. In an old fashioned old-die fray, the Orange and Black will edge

Rutgers' Scarlet Knights,

15-13, har-rump!

In other games it will be:

UCAL Field Hockey Starts Tuesday

BOICEVILLE
Red Hook High is the defending champion in the eight-team Uster County Athletic League's girls Field Hockey division, as the season gets under way with four games on Tuesday. Ontario was runnerup to the Raiderettes last season.

The schedule for the first day sends unbeaten Red Hook

(7-0 in 1974) against Ellenville. Ontario (6-1) hosts Pine

Bush, New Palz is at Wallkill

and Coleman High hosts

Fallsburg.

Carol Okoren of Ontario

High, the UCAL Field Hockey

chairperson, predicts a tight race. "Red Hook and Ontario

ers," she said, "but none of the teams can be counted out.

The league looks well-balanced."

Ms. Okoren also announced that All-UCAL first and second field hockey teams will be selected for the first time this fall. For field hockey, each varsity coach will nominate players for consideration and then vote to pick the outstanding players in the league based on skill, teamwork, endurance and sportsmanship.

Your Astrograph

For Saturday, Sept. 27, 1975
ARIES (March 21-April 19)
You'll be cooking on all burners today. You'll function with a competence that will surprise even yourself.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
It's a very unusual day for you moneywise. You'll have a host of little opportunities that will show a surprising total.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

Don't be too surprised if you hear from a lot of friends you haven't been in touch with for a long time. You're on the minds of many.
CANCER (June 21-July 22)
You've done a host of good deeds in the past. Today is the day when you'll be on the receiving end.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
Several people are going to be anxious to get in touch with you. If you go out today, leave word when you can be reached.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
If you've done your job well the past few days, the rewards will start coming in. It's abonus you didn't anticipate.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
Don't discard ideas you get today, particularly if they seem to be way out. Talk them over with someone in the field who could use them.
SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)
You're extra sharp in business and finance today. You'll be able to spot a profit in areas other people wouldn't be aware of.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)
Today you'll find that roadblock is not as impassable as you thought. You'll be able to see many ways around it.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
It's a day when you'll be far more adept at finishing a lot of little projects, rather than a big job. The little ones you will do well.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)
You're a natural for the family today. Though you're the catalyst that makes it all possible, everyone will benefit.
PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)
Good things happen for the family today. Though you're the catalyst that makes it all possible, everyone will benefit.

Jean Adams

TEEN FORUM

By Jean Adams, Ph.D.

TOO MUCH: (Q.) Last night I went drinking and got totaled. My parents found out and have lost all trust in me. My girl friend is in trouble with her parents because of me. I think the other kids I was with hate me too. I feel like I've disgraced the world. I have just moped around all day. Please help me.—Dark Day in Massachusetts

(A.) A heavy load of alcohol often brings on black thoughts. Your depression should go away in a day or two. But do not forget what drinking did to you, and what it can do again and again if you let it. Ask your parents and your girl friend and her parents and your other friends to forgive you. But also forgive yourself.

BOY CHASER: (Q.) I am a boy chaser and have been since I was 10 or 11. I am now 13 and still going strong. Each time I promise myself I'll be calm, but I can't. Sometimes I get the boy I chase. Sometimes I don't. I usually lose the ones I like the most. I like almost all the boys I meet and chase almost all of them.—Desperate in Pennsylvania

(A.) You see yourself very clearly. You know exactly what your problem is and exactly what the solution is: Stop chasing boys. They don't like to be chased. You hurt yourself every time you chase one. Stop hurting yourself.

Win At Bridge

Desperate Dan Wins Horseshoe

By Oswald & James Jacoby
The unlucky expert had called on again.
"Look, look at this hand!" he commanded.

"What happened?" we asked. "Did your partner put you in seven or did you miss the slam?"
"Neither," he replied. "We bid the hand to a normal six diamonds."

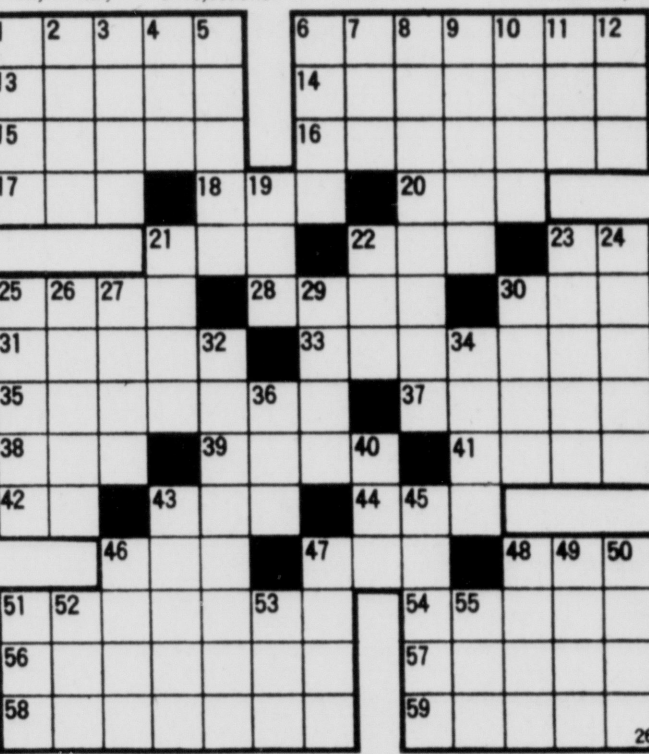

"You don't mean to say that the ace of hearts was opened against you to hold you to six while other declarers got some other lead and made an over-trick?"
"Worse than that," he groaned. Desperate Dan sat East. He had passed throughout the bidding with his 6-5 distribution and four high-card points. Then, when my partner bid six diamonds, Dan thought; cleared his throat and bid six spades."

Our friend is really entitled to complain about this one. When Dan bid six spades, he was taking the sort of gamble that is foreign to all principles of good bridge except that once in a while these horrible gambles pay off. This time it did. Dan got himself a top score by his crazy action.

OPEC Is Divided On Price Freeze

VIENNA, Austria (UPI) — Saudi Arabia today demanded a freeze on oil prices until Jan. 1, provoking bitter opposition from other major producers of the world's oil.

Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani, the Saudi oil minister, presented the demand to a special session of the Organization of Petroleum Countries on his return from London where he consulted his government Thursday night.

Oil ministers from other member nations were bitterly opposed. Jamshid Amouzegar of Iran, told reporters, in reference to Saudi Arabia, "No one country is going to dictate its views to 12 others."

Yamani said, "My position is to freeze prices." He denied reports he had proposed a 5 percent increase.

"That was an Algerian proposal which I accepted," he said. "The Algerian proposal was for a 5 percent price increase now and another 5 percent at the beginning of 1976 and a freeze for the whole of 1976."

"I was prepared to accept that proposal with certain conditions."

However, Yamani said after consulting his government he has gone back to his original proposal of demanding a price freeze until the end of this year, with a "moderate" increase in 1976.

Before Yamani returned, Iranian oil minister Jamshid Amouzegar told reporters, in reference to Saudi Arabia, "No one is going to dictate to 12 other countries."

Amouzegar, outlining Iran's position for the first time, said he is pushing for a "moderate" increase of 15 to 16 percent when the current nine-month-old OPEC price freeze expires Sept. 30. He said the hike could take place in two stages.

"I hope so," Amouzegar said when asked if he thought a compromise could be found.

Under the OPEC charter, prices can only be raised by unanimous decision. A 10 percent increase would raise the world's oil bill by $10 billion and boost U.S. oil import costs by $2.5 billion.

Back Controls

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford and Senate Democrats have agreed to reimpose oil price controls until Nov. 15.

The move, assuming the full Congress approves, will avoid immediate consumer price increases for gasoline and other petroleum products.

Between now and mid-November, Ford and congress will try to agree on a national energy policy.

The controls, holding most domestically produced oil to $5.25 per barrel — half the price of uncontrolled oil — expired Sept. 1. Oil companies held their prices, waiting to see what congress would do. The proposed 75-day extension is retroactive to Sept. 1.

As part of the agreement Ford will not submit to congress before Nov. 1 any plan for gradually lifting price controls.

Ford accepted the formula in a meeting with congressional leaders Thursday morning, and the Senate Democratic caucus approved it later in the day.

Ford had been holding out for an extension of only 45 or 60 days beyond Sept. 1. So he gave ground in the agreement.

Rep. Bob Eckhardt (D-Tex.) said he thinks that is because there has been "a change in the climate" of energy politics.

A Vote to Protect Taxpayers From IRS Zeal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Ways and Means Committee has voted to give the taxpayer a little more protection from the awesome enforcement powers of the Internal Revenue Service.

If Congress eventually goes along with the committee decisions, taxpayers will have the right to try in federal court to block IRS searches of bank accounts, or summary seizures and sale of property by the IRS for unpaid tax bills.

The committee, writing a major tax bill, voted Thursday to add these provisions:

• Taxpayers must be informed by the IRS when a summons is issued for "third party" records such as bank accounts or accountants' records. The taxpayer then would have the right to fight the summons in U.S. District Court.

• The IRS must obtain permission from U.S. District Courts to issue "John Doe" summonses, which may involve searches of bank or accounting records of dozens or even hundreds of persons to look for suspected wrongdoing.

No permission from any court or any other agency is required now.

• Taxpayers must be informed in advance when the IRS plans seizures of property or money under "jeopardy" or "termination" provisions of the tax code. The IRS now has the right to seize or garnish the property or income of any taxpayer, without recourse, if the IRS thinks the person will attempt to avoid payment of tax bills.

The committee would allow taxpayers to go immediately into federal court rather than waiting six months as now, and would forbid the IRS from selling the property until the issue was settled.

The committee also voted to take a step sought by tax reformers who have gone to court under the Freedom of Information Act to gain release of private rulings made by the IRS. These rulings have been kept secret.

The committee voted to make public, after a waiting period of six months to a year, the name of a taxpayer who gets the ruling and the nature of the ruling. Previous rulings, from 1967 until Thursday, would also be released, but with all names or identifying information deleted.

Secrecy Delays Mideast Action

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A dispute between the Ford administration and the Senate Foreign Relations Committee over the extent of U.S. commitments to Israel and Egypt has thrown into doubt when Congress will act on the latest Middle East accord.

The committee says before it approves sending 200 American civilian technicians to the Sinai it wants the administration to make public four secret documents showing the extent of the commitments.

The administration doesn't want to release them.

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger met with the Senate panel for two and a half hours Thursday afternoon but failed to find any immediate solution to the impasse.

President Ford warned a group of congressional leaders earlier Thursday that delay by Congress in approving dispatch of the civilians to monitor the Middle East agreement could jeopardize the agreement itself.

Kissinger and Chairman Frank Church, D-Idaho, pledged their sides to "a good faith effort" to find a mutually satisfactory solution soon.

A resolution approving use of the technicians similarly has bogged down in the House International Relations Committee.

Ambassador Robert McCloskey, Kissinger's top aide for congressional relations, told reporters the administration was reluctant to publish the documents because this would hamper future U.S. negotiating flexibility, would tend to solidify what U.S. negotiators meant only as statements of intentions and would embarrass Egyptian President Anwar Sadat. Sadat is under fire from some Arab leaders for accepting the Middle East agreement.

Some committee members consider the promises in the documents to be so wide ranging they amount to a new U.S. defense commitment.

Three of the documents have been leaked to the news media. They include a promise of aid if Israel is threatened by "a world power," presumably the Soviet Union.

For such promises to be valid, the senators say, Congress and the American people must be know fully their extent and implications.

A Ford Pledge of Caution

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford says he's going to be more careful in his travels around the country.

He made the comment to Metropolitan Opera star Roberta Peters while dancing with her at the state dinner party honoring Colombian President Alfonso Lopez Michelsen Thursday.

Ford also told Miss Peters he was standing by his limousine, not shaking hands, when he was fired on last Monday in San Francisco.

Ford scheduled a visit to the Justice Department today to attend a briefing on a new program to give repeat offenders earlier trials. Priority for crime repeaters is expected to reduce the time they are free awaiting trial in jammed courts.

At the state dinner, Paul Harley, California Republican state chairman, said he thinks Ford will return to California at the end of October as previously planned for fund-raising events in Los Angeles and San Francisco, Oct. 29-30.

"I hate to see any siege mentality developing," said Harley. "We very much want him back."

Harley said "California is still a wonderful state and I think he'll come back." He said the events planned in late October will be "controlled situations."

Harley used to be on the staff of former Gov. Ronald Reagan of California but has announced his support of Ford for the GOP presidential nomination.

Asked why he had switched, Harley said, "I admire Gov. Reagan very much. I think he's a hell of a guy. I think he'd make a hell of a President. But I think we have a good President."
